Automobiles and good roads mean progress. You are reminded of it by the Reuter News Agency correspondent from Addis Ababa, who says news is brought from the front to the Ethiopian Emperor by "swift barefooted runners, capable of covering 30 miles a day."

Compare that with the little American automobile, shod with rubber, capable of covering, easily, 600 miles a day, with plenty of time for the driver to sleep.

Fifty-one League nations denounce Italy and side with Ethiopia. Emperor Selassie, cheered by this "rallying round," hails "the greatest act in the history of the League of Nations," vows never to make peace with Italy except on a basis of Ethiopian victory.

The Emperor does not exactly say that he will invade Rome, and perhaps bomb the Quirinal, but he WILL if he can.

The fly in the League ointment is the fact that Austria and Hungary decline to boycott Italy. This means they will continue selling supplies to Italy, and Austria, as Italy's nearest neighbor, will find it convenient.

At Geneva official representatives of Italy said blockade of Italy by the Allies would be considered "an act of war," a statement that is important, remembering Mussolini's warning.

"I shall reply to acts of war with acts of war."

Which of the fifty-one League Nations Mussolini would attack is not stated. But England, off to one side by herself, convenient for bombing, and the moving power in the united attack on Mussolini, would doubtless be selected.

If European war must come it will be enlightening as to the character of modern warfare and the results of airplane panic.

Karl H. Von Wiegand wires Universal Service from Addis Ababa:

"Sixteen Italian airplanes spreading death across the desert, bombed three Ethiopian towns, blasting a way for the Italian infantry."

One Italian plane crashed, according to Mr. Von Wiegand, three killed, one shot and captured. "Many dead" is the report.

If sixteen Italian airplanes in thinly settled Ethiopia can cause "many deaths," what would SIXTEEN HUNDRED Italian airplanes do to the millions crowded together in the city of London? If Italian marksmen could bomb several times the governor's palace in Aduwa, doing little other injury, what would thousands of Italian pilots do to Buckingham Palace and other British, royal legislative and financial headquarters?

There is no more deserving, no more well-meaning monarch in history than King George. The world wishes him well, and his statesmen should realize what trouble they are inviting for him.

The character of the new war through the air is shown in a report of the first Italian airplane down, with three killed, one injured. In old wars, a single exploding bomb might have killed one hundred times as many without attracting attention. Airplane attacks cost little, sacrifice few lives on the side of the attacker, cause great destruction and demoralization on the side of the enemy.

The Russian ballet arrives in New York's Metropolitan Opera House, from Monte Carlo, not Moscow.

As the dancers, men and women, went through intricate performances, with absolute precision and beauty of motion, it was interesting to see among spectators the white-haired Walter Damrosch, face as eager as that of a boy, as youthful as when he went driving with Andrew Carnegie and James G. Blaine through Scotland nearly fifty years ago.

Occasionally, when a young Russian male dancer jumped into the air and pirouetted half a dozen times before coming down, and when the graceful Russian ballet dancers, Toumanova, Riabouchinska and others, floated lightly around the stage on the tips of their toes, Dr. Damrosch's deep voice could be heard calling out, "marvelous, marvelous."

The perfection of Sembrich, the singer; Paderewski, the pianist; Heifetz, the violinist, is possessed by the marvelous Russian dancers. They will travel from coast to coast. Be sure to see them illustrating the difference between doing a thing perfectly and doing it half way.

$14,830 PAY CASH SEIZED IN ROXBURY

Gunmen escaped with a $14,830 payroll today in a spectacular holdup of the Trimount Clothing Company on Station street, Roxbury.

They fled to the Fenway, abandoned their car in Tetlow street, and separated.

Police, directed by radio, were reported in close pursuit.

Three or four bandits, one swinging a sub-machine gun, the others pistols, terrorized girl employes of the factory, forced a watchman to lie on his stomach, threatened a salesman with death and stole all but the change of an $18,280 payroll for 1100 workers.

NEAR POLICE STATION

The bold invasion of the factory occurred soon after the paymaster arrived there from the bank this afternoon.

The bandit car, a light, fast sedan, came to a stop in front of the Station street main entrance, only a short distance from the Roxbury Crossing police station, and three bandits mounted the stairs to the second floor office.

Whether a fourth remained at the wheel of the car was not known.

The trio first entered the factory telephone office which is outside the cashier's office.

WARNS PHONE GIRL

One thrust a pistol into the back of Freda Barry, of Montebello road, Jamaica Plain, the only phone operator on duty.

"Plug in and you'll be plugged," he warned her. "Be quiet. This is a holdup."

She let her hands drop by her sides. The gunman snatched the headpiece. Lights flickered unanswered on the board.

While one robber kept her covered, two others startled for the cashier's office. They found the glass-paneled door locked. The glass crashed as a gun butt was swung. A gloved hand reached through, unlocked the door.

PASSENGERS TAKEN OFF LINER

Nearly four score passengers, including women and children, were taken off the marooned liner City of Montgomery today in outer Boston Harbor, after attempts to pull the liner off the rocks of Lovell's Island failed.

With the women and children taking precedence, the passengers were transferred to the lighter Nevada, alongside, and then were put aboard tugs by a coast guard lifeboat.

They were all landed at Ocean Pier docks in Charlestown.

Five tugs failed to pull the City of Montgomery off the rocks on the morning high tide.

Another attempt to float her will be made late tonight.

The vessel, which ran aground at midnight, soon after high water, appeared to be in no danger. The sea was smooth under a moderate westerly wind.

The coast guard reported, after failure of first attempts to float her, that her keel is wedged tightly on the ledge and possibly broken.

Before the morning flood tide a portion of the liner's freight cargo was transferred to the lighter Nevada.

A lifeboat and a smaller motor craft from the Point Allerton coast guard station, aided the tugs under direction of Boatswain's Mate Edwin Webber.

There is a crew of 74 on the liner, which is commanded by Captain Bertrand H. Garfield.

She sailed from Hoosac docks in Charlestown at 9 o'clock last night for New York and Savannah, her passengers nearly all from Greater Boston.

She struck on the rocky shoal off the northeast side of the island, her position being about two miles off the Pemberton shore.

City of Montgomery is 371 feet long, 4625 tons, and was built at Newport News in 1910.

In March, 1934, Captain Garfield took her safely into New York harbor, winning a race with fire that broke out in her cargo hold off the Virginia Capes.

Propellers Full Astern — No Use!

With her engines full astern and her big propellers vainly churning the water all about her to foam, the liner City of Montgomery still finds it impossible to back off Lovell's Island shoals where she is fast aground in Boston's outer harbor. Hawsers shown stretching tautly from the stranded vessel's stern are fast to tugs which add their combined strength to the futile haul. A barge is taking off part of the steamship's cargo. War and the League

GENEVA—The full penalties committee of the assembly of the League of Nations, comprising the membership represented in Geneva minus Italy, today adopted the recommendation of a sub-committee that a general arms embargo be placed against Italy and that present embargoes against Ethiopia be lifted.

ADDIS ABABA—Massacre of 2500 Italian defenders of Aduwa reported by Reuters News Service. Report denied by Italian officials as "fantastic." Emperor Haile Selassie orders Italy's minister to leave Ethiopia by 3 a. m. Saturday.

BULLETIN

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—An authoritative source said today the British government is ready to lift the arms embargo against Ethiopia the minute the League of Nations approves such action.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 11—A general arms embargo against Italy and permission for Ethiopia to import all the war munitions she needs were ordered today by the full penalties committee of the League of Nations.

The committee represents every member of the League except Italy and Ethiopia.

At the same time a special sub-committee undertook to study the possibility of placing a financial boycott against Italy. Such a boycott might cover all loans and credits made by foreign nations to Italy.

Not only does the arms embargo apply to future shipments of war materials to Italy, but it applies to contracts already entered into.

The resolution passed by the big committee contains one paragraph designed to block any effort by Mussolini to get war supplies through neighboring anti-sanction states such as Austria.

This paragraph states that the members of the League will "take such steps as may be necessary" to prevent re-export "directly or indirectly" of arms to Italy or its possessions.

Report 2500 Die at Aduwa

Addis Ababa, Oct. 11 (Reuters)—Ethiopian troops were reported today to have stormed Aduwa last night and to have massacred the town's 2500 Italian defenders.

The forces of Ras Seyoum, Ethiopian commander in the north, numbering 50,880 men, were reported to have surrounded Aduwa, which was captured Sunday by the Italians, and to have killed "every one" of the 2500 defenders.

The Ethiopian losses were heavy, but Ras Seyoum's fighters were reported to have captured large

FLOYD GIBBONS TELLS HOW ITALIANS HOLD ADUWA

INTRENCHED AROUND CITY HOLD OFF 2000 ETHIOPIANS

By FLOYD GIBBONS
(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

Aduwa, Ethiopia, Oct. 8—(By courier to Asmara, Eritrea, where cleared 3:00 p. m., Oct. 9)—Ras Seyum, Ethiopian northern commander with forces numbering 2000, is occupying impregnable mountains south of this place and threatens a counter-attack, but the Italian forces here are strongly intrenched with a far-reaching circle of outlying defense positions capable of taking care of any eventuality.

Reconnaissance planes are constantly over the area occupied by the Ethiopian forces, dropping small bombs, and, under orders, are flying close to the ground, firing machine guns whenever concentrations are sighted.

Ras Seyum is sending small sniping parties on both lines of Italian communications.

OCCUPY 2000 MILES

The Italians are now occupying about 2000 square miles of Ethiopian territory—a strip approximately 20 miles deep across a region 60 miles wide.

They are contemplating no immediate advance farther south in the direction of Addis Ababa, which is still 400 miles south, beyond even higher mountains and terrain even more desolate and difficult than that which the Italians have already encountered.

Airplane reconnaissance today revealed only scattered groups of Ethiopians in view south of Aduwa and Adigrat, totaling about 2000.

These groups are made up of irregulars, and are not sufficiently strong to counter-attack the Italian positions.

But they will undoubtedly pursue guerilla tactics, sniping troops and interfering with Italian lines of communication.

The Italian intelligence section has located the next Ethiopian concentration in force on a line between Gondar, which is 100 miles southwest of Aduwa, and Tagadde, which is eight miles south of Gondar, just above Lake Tsana.

Obviously, the belligerent forces are completely out of touch with one another.

The Italians are now busy consolidating the ground already gained. Strengthening defenses, widening and building roads, digging wells to increase the water supply, stringing wires, building permanent barracks.

Approximately 100,000 Italians are defending their strongholds in the occupied areas.

Wild rumors and reports of Ethiopian counter-attacks and terrific massacres of Italians are unfounded, although many of these rumors could be quieted if an official casualty list were issued.

General Emilio De Bono, Italian high commissioner for Eritrea and commander of the troops on the northern front is soon coming to Aduwa for official occupation ceremonies in this city that has now been taken back by the Italians in "avenging" their defeat here in 1896.

A huge celebration will accompany the ceremony.

The Italians marched a long way to get to Aduwa, and there's not much to see after you get here.

The historic town is located in a green basin, spreading up the sides and over the top of two slight ridges, all covered with narrow lanes and winding streets, low stone walls, corrals, and native thatched huts.

30 BUILDINGS IN TOWN

There are only ten tin-roofed buildings in town.

General Pietro Mariviginia, who was in charge of the advance column that entered town Sunday, has now established headquarters in the two-story red brick Italian consulate.

Two miles from the edge of town, which is now surrounded by the pup tents of many battalions of infantry, mountain gun posts, machine guns, and detachments of Ascari warriors.

Reinforcements are pouring in every hour, ahorse and afoot, all night and all day, with long lines of plodding mules and donkeys bringing up lots of supplies, mostly shells and rifle ammunition.

Food supplies at present are low, with the occupying troops on emergency rations, but engineers are hurriedly pushing forward Roman roads over the old caravan routes

Investigation at the palace of Ras Seyum, which is composed of eight one-storied stone and mud-walled buildings, with tin roofs, guarded by a large stone-walled compound, indicated a hurried departure of the occupants.

Wine bottles and pieces of European furniture found in the palace were identified by Italians as having been looted from the Italian consulate.

The largest building in the compound, known as the tribunal, from which Ras Seyum dispensed justice, is nothing more than a large tin-roofed shed, with open sides and three encircling tiers of mud benches, on which members of the council squatted.

THE "IMPERIAL THRONE"

The throne room contained a wall painting of the Lion of Judah (Emperor Haile Selassie) wearing a barrender's mustache like handlebars used by six-day bike racers, and the only piece of furniture visible was an old, busted sofa with its springs and stuffing coming out underneath —presumably the imperial throne.

The sofa looked like it had seen hard imperial service.

After the occupation Italians showed me a handful of cartridges bearing the date 1935 and the mark of a Belgian manufacturer, and also one machine-gun, 1914 model, found in a position from which Ethiopian snipers had been driven.

The occupation was not without incident since although the town was virtually deserted, Ethiopian troops in full view east of the town opened a heavy long-range rifle fire and some machine-gun fire on the advancing Italians.

A sharp exchange of rifle fire continued for an hour, with a few casualties.

Why Gibbons' News Has Been Late

By International News Service

Reports reaching London today of fierce fighting at Aduwa between attacking Ethiopians and defending Italians, are without direct confirmation from the front because of censorship and the delay in getting dispatches back from the advance lines to Asmara, Italian field headquarters in Eritrea.

Floyd Gibbons, famous headline hunter of International News Service, who is with the Italian forces at Aduwa, today finally got a dispatch through via courier to Asmara, thence by wireless and cable to Rome and New York.

One dispatch, written by Gibbons Tuesday and clearing Asmara Wednesday, reported Ras Seyum, northern commander of the Ethiopians, concentrating a force near Aduwa. Gibbons' dispatch estimated this force at 2000 but since Tuesday this may have been augmented by reinforcements which, it is known, have been on the way north for several days.

ITALY PROTESTS BRITISH RULE IN LEAGUE

By Associated Press

Rome, Oct. 11 — A source close to the government said today Italy will remain in the League of Nations unless penalties of a military nature drive her out.

An economic blockade backed by naval power would be construed as a military penalty, said this source.

A government spokesman said Italy desires to remain in the League but wishes to modify the League's construction so that it will "be effective for maintaining peace rather than being an instrument of war as it now is."

An official source asserted that the League was too much under British domination now and was being used as a tool of British hostility to Italy.

"The League is so tied to British politics," he stated, "that it is even sensitive to the influence of the approaching British election."

The refusal of the British post-office to relay last night's proposed speech by Baron Pompeo Aloisi from Geneva to America was cited by government sources as a proof that Great Britain "does not feel morally strong."

"The least she could do," said one source, "is to let the man who is accused state his case."

An official spokesman said that Premier Mussolini's reply to economic penalties would be to buy elsewhere.

If League members refuse to trade with Italy, he said, their refusal "probably will alter Italy's commercial relations for all time."

In other well informed circles it was said Italy will "remember her friends and enemies."

numbers of rifles, machine guns, artillery and ammunition.

The Italians were said to be planning a counter attack.

(There was no immediate confirmation from Rome or other sources in Addis Ababa of the reported recapture of Aduwa.)

The Ethiopian fighters, smarting under the loss of the historic city to the Italians, were said to have resorted to age-old tactics, striking under the cover of darkness, falling on the enemy swiftly and engaging in bitter hand-to-hand fighting in which spears and daggers were pitted against the modern bayonets of Mussolini's troops.

The battle was reported to have raged throughout the night, neither side asking nor giving quarter.

The Italians were now reported rallying their forces to the north of Aduwa for a fierce counter-thrust.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Italian headquarters in Eritrea, however, said General Emilio De Bono, accompanied by his staff, motored into Aduwa this morning and occupied the city officially in the name of the Italian government.

At the same time, a Reuters dispatch from Asmara, Eritrea, said information received there was that Ras Kassa, another Ethiopian chieftain, was joining forces with Ras Seyoum and Dedjahmatch Buru, northern provincial governor, for a concerted defense against an Italian advance toward Gondar.

Italy Denies Reports Of Aduwa Massacre

Rome, Oct. 11—Italian officials today denied reports from Ethiopia that Aduwa had been recaptured with a massacre of the Italian garrison.

They said another report telling of severe fighting between Italians and Ethiopians near Mount Muna All was merely "an effort to alarm the French," because the mountain is on the French Somaliland border.

War Bulletins

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—A report from Diredawa, Ethiopia, not confirmed by any other sources, said today that the Ethiopian forces had captured Walwal and Wardair on the southern front.

Aden, Oct. 11 (INS)—Ten thousand armed Somali tribesmen, Italian subjects, have joined the Ethiopian forces in northern Ogaden province, it was reported by travelers arriving here today from Djibouti.

Paris, Oct. 11 (INS)—All 50,000 of the Italian troops in Ogaden province of southeastern Ethiopia are now engaged in a powerful drive towards Harar, Paris-Midi reported today from Addis Ababa.

London, Oct. 11 (INS)—A Central News dispatch from Rome today said Italians consider the Ethiopian war is "virtually ended owing to the mass desertions of Abyssinians."

Italian Plane Shot Down By Savage Sharpshooters

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

Addis Ababa, Oct. 11—Savage sharp-shooters of the notoriously ferocious Issa tribe brought down an Italian plane by rifle fire, killing two military pilots and one pet dog mascot in the Wabens region, on the border of French Somaliland, it was announced officially today.

Italians still hold both Aduwa and Adigrat, according to the latest information in the hands of the Ethiopian government.

(Editor's note: this was stated in comment upon London reports that Ethiopians today had recaptured Aduwa, massacring the Italian forces who had been holding the city.)

The plane brought down in the Wabens region was the second forced down by the Ethiopians, and the crash makes six victims.

There was great Ethiopian satisfaction at having fulfilled the boast they could bring down Italian planes with rifles.

It was not reported how the two Italian officers met their deaths, whether it was from the crash or at the hands of the Issa warriors.

It was regarded as certain the form of demise was unusually unpleasant in any case.

The Issa savages, though proud of the feat, hesitated for 48 hours before venturing to report it to the government because early in the year Emperor Haile Selassie severely punished them for killing French and German members of a border commission.

Their habit is to kill any stranger, but to inform the government only of such approved killings as those of Italians.

The word has now spread through the border country that it is not only safe to kill Italians, but actually profitable, because the government is bringing to Addis Ababa the messenger who brought the news of the feat, and the Emperor intends to decorate him.

In addition to having no reports that Aduwa or Adigrat were retaken, the government similarly is without word of reports Aksum was ever taken by the Italians.

The government believes there is severe fighting in Ogaden province, in the south, where Italians are advancing afoot, preceded by aerial bombardment. There has been no communication from either front for 24 hours, however.

YOUTH CONFESSES LOVE STRANGLING

DEATH ENDS HER LOVE

KILLED BEAUTY WHO SPURNED PLEA TO WED

Monticello, N. Y., Oct. 11—Glenn Brasser, 22-year-old Rochester dairyman, was held under heavy guard today after state police said he confessed strangling Muriel Hall, Rochester high school beauty, because she preferred "another boy friend."

Brasser, police said, signed a two-page confession in which he said he choked the 18-year-old girl to death in her home Wednesday evening after a "lovers' quarrel."

In a calm and even voice, Brasser, a husky 200-pound former CCC worker, told of entering the girl's home in an exclusive residential section and waiting for her to return from school.

"She told me it was all off between us," Brasser was quoted by police, "and she didn't want to see me any more."

Brasser then became infuriated, Waldron said, and started choking her.

"I couldn't live without her," State troopers quoted Brasser as saying.

Found in Jail

"I choked her for 10 minutes; then ran out of the house. She refused my offer of marriage. If I couldn't have her, I didn't want anybody else to.

"I was waiting for her in the apartment. When she came home from school I asked her if she'd be my wife.

"She said she never wanted to see me again and laughed. We had a fearful argument. I got so angry I grabbed her and choked her. As soon as I realized what I had done, I knew I'd have to run away."

Following discovery of the body, a search was started for Brasser whom friends reported they formerly were engaged, but had quarreled.

The "break" in the case came with startling speed. Brasser drove up to a gasoline filling station near Liberty late yesterday and ordered some gasoline. He drove off without paying for it, and the station operator notified police.

The young man was arrested by a Liberty policeman and turned over to a state trooper. Neither officer knew Brasser was wanted in connection with the Rochester slaying.

They took him before a county judge, who sentenced him to 30 days in jail for theft and driving without a license.

It was not until they had reached the county jail here that they got word Brasser was wanted in Rochester.

The young man told police he had thought of committing suicide after leaving the house, but gave up the idea. Waldron found two bottles of poison in Brasser's possession.

Brasser also was quoted as saying Muriel had promised to marry him, but he had postponed the wedding because he hoped to get a better job.

Last week, he said, Muriel told him she was through with him and she "had another boy friend."

Hauptmann 'Cannot Confess'

AGAIN CRIES FRAMEUP

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 11—Bruno Richard Hauptmann branded his conviction on charges of murdering the Lindbergh baby "a frame-up from start to finish," his wife, Anna, said today.

She said that Hauptmann, following an unsuccessful appeal to the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals, told her in the Trenton death house he was not surprise at the high court's decision.

"When I saw Richard," Mrs. Hauptmann said, "he asked me to tell the press that he could not confess to the Lindbergh kidnaping or name the kidnapers, even if the state offered him all the money in the world as well as his freedom."

She said that Hauptmann had not indicated to her that the state had offered to retract or commute the death sentence and give him $10,000 for a full confession, which the New York Journal said yesterday that an unrevealed New Jersey official had promised.

STILL HOPEFUL

"Richard still feels that he will go free as an innocent man," Mrs. Hauptmann said. "He told me yesterday, which was our tenth wedding anniversary, that we would be happy together on our next anniversary.

"Richard told me that while he was in jail in New York a high Bronx official told him: 'If you ever have to go to New Jersey, it will be just too bad. You never could get justice there.'

NOT SURPRISED

"But Richard said that no matter how things look now, in the end the truth about the Lindbergh kidnaping will come out, and that then some of the officials who have framed him would get a taste of what he has suffered."

She said that, when he learned of the upholding of his conviction, he just said:

"I'm not surprised. This is Jersey justice."

Mrs. Hauptmann declared that she "is willing to gamble her life that her husband is innocent."

Won Yacht Title

From Horse Show Ring to Makeup Table Was Course of Her Career

Broadway And Fame Her Goal

Six years ago this month, when Morris Gest, the theatrical producer, came to Boston to stage a revival of his spectacle, "The Miracle," he surprised everyone by offering the part of "the nun" to Miss Jane Bancroft, a debutante unknown to the theatrical world.

To be sure, Jane had shown great interest in school plays and had taken parts in Junior League shows.

But the public knew her best as a daring horsewoman and owner of a string of thoroughbreds.

Perhaps Morris Gest employed some sort of second sight when he selected this almost untrained girl for a part in his lavish production.

Or again it may be his faith in her was what started Jane off in pursuit of that dream of all actors, a part in a play on Broadway.

For pursue it she has, not in the lackadaisical fashion of a spoiled daughter of rich parents, but by systematic plugging, by study and practice.

At Colonial

And as the result she now is a member of the cast of "Wisdom in Women" which opens at the Colonial Theater a week from Monday for a short run before the New York premier.

Jane, the daughter of Mrs. Hugh Bancroft of Boston and Cohasset and the late Mr. Bancroft, publisher, sportsman and financier, began her career as a sportswoman.

Her first enthusiasm was for aquatic sports, swimming and sailing with the fleet of the Cohasset Yacht Club.

She became so proficient in both that she eventually taught a swimming class and won a women's sailing championship.

She then turned to the horse show ring and won a roomful of trophies with a string of thoroughbreds, but as soon as the stage absorbed her interest, she sold her horses.

She directed and played in several Junior League and Vincent Club productions, studied at the Gloucester Little Theater, played with several summer groups and eventually joined the "Wisdom In Women" company in Locust Valley this last summer.

Jane and the play were both a success at this try-out run and so she will be with it when it opens at the Colonial.

Barbara, Fay, Part Secretly

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Hollywood, Oct. 11—Very quietly and without taking anyone into her confidence, Barbara Stanwyck separated from Frank Fay several weeks ago, and a division of community property was effected at that time.

Miss Stanwyck, who has recently signed a contract with R.K.O. after making "Annie Oakley" for them and who has been doing some excellent work on the screen, told this writer she left the Fay home in Brentwood last August, taking with her her adopted son Dion.

"I feel," said Barbara, speaking very slowly and with some reluctance, "that Frank and I are better apart. He has just made a picture for Warners, 'Stars Over Broadway,' and I am told he is excellent.

"I think he has far more talent than many actors who are paid twice his salary."

Barbara and Frank were married in New York shortly after Miss Stanwyck's sensational success on the stage in "Burlesque." They have been married seven years and they came here in 1929 when Frank was brought to Hollywood by Warner Bros. for musical comedies.

Miss Stanwyck said she was undecided about a divorce, but she added that there was no chance of a reconciliation.

Fay Vigorously Denies Separation

Hollywood, Oct. 11—Frank Fay, actor, today vigorously denied repeated reports that he and his talented actress wife, Barbara Stanwyck, have separated.

Miss Stanwyck is said to have admitted a separation yesterday, and it said to have declared she moved from the couple's home last August, taking with her her adopted son, Dion.

Mrs. Roosevelt Marks Birthday

By Associated Press

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 11—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is celebrating her 51st birthday anniversary today at Valkill cottage, near the site of the furniture factory in which she is a partner.

"There will be a birthday cake, but no special party and no other guests," said Miss Nancy Cook, her partner, who lives in the cottage.

Nashua Woman Bags a Grizzly

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 11—Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Peterson went on a hunting trip and returned with the following bag:

Four snow-white sheep, four wild goats, four caribou, two moose, one grizzly bear, one black bear.

But the hunting was all done in Alaska, where the couple traveled 15,000 miles, mostly by airplane, since August 2.

Mrs. Peterson shot the grizzly in Kenai Pass, and she was the first white woman ever to visit the region.

SPIRIT OF '76 RULES

Dawes Chases, Captures Motorist

Back in '76 Rufus Dawes chased across Boston and out into the country to halt the British, when Paul Revere sounded the alarm after lanterns were hung in Old North Church.

Today Edward Dawes, of Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, chased across Boston, to halt a motorist who is alleged to have fled the scene of an accident.

Motorcycle Officer Andrew Trodden arrested Wolfe Arnold, instructor in Harvard's Institute of Geographic Exploration.

Arnold is held in Cambridge, charged with drunkenness, driving while under the influence of liquor, driving so as to endangre life, and leaving the scene of an accident.

Police charge that Arnold's car struck that operated by Thomas Kennedy, Vale street, Oxford, at Hampshire and Tremont streets, Cambridge, today, throwing Kennedy's car onto a sidewalk, where it struck and injured 16-year-old Ernest Champion of Norfolk street, Cambridge.

Champion was taken to relief hospital, where he was found to have injuries to his left leg and bruises.

Arnold was in the public eye once before last March, when he fell 2000 feet and landed in a swamp after 19 spins in an airplane on his test flight for a pilot's license in Norwood. Arnold landed unhurt and rescuers swam the Neponset river to reach him.

TWO NEW SUSPECTS HELD IN MAINE CHILD MURDER

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

Fairfield, Me., Oct. 11—Two new suspects were arrested for questioning about the murder of 12-year-old Annie K. Knights today. One was a Benton man, the other a man seen near the murder spot about the time the child was strangled.

Fairfield, Me., Oct. 11—Search for the fiendish slayer of 12-year-old Annie Knights was focused in a new direction today.

State Detective Frank Cooper and Sheriff Martin J. Gallant, leading the probe of one of Maine's most brutal crimes, said a new suspect will be taken into custody today for questioning.

The man in question was well known to the girl whose garroted body was found in an alder clump off the Skowhegan highway Wednesday.

In addition, the officials said, he is well known in the town and has always enjoyed a blameless reputation.

It is a man of this type, they believe, they must seek if they are to run down the ruthless killer of the girl.

SWITCH INQUIRY

Switching from their investigation of paupers and heavy drinkers, at first under suspicion, the officers are now hunting a man in whom the little girl would have implicit confidence.

They point out that, if the girl had been attacked and murdered at the place her body was found, the fact the child went there showed her trust and lack of fear in the man.

While the latest suspect is being picked up and questioned, other officers will visit several buildings in the town in a hunt for the child's hat and the missing bag of apples she was bringing home when she met death.

Also in line with their new theory on the crime, officials plan to talk with the slain girl's parents today. In view of the fact that her funeral was held yesterday, the parents were not questioned earlier.

It is planned to obtain from them a complete list of people the girl victim knew.

The will include friends of the family, persons who would have access to the house and whom the girl would trust.

SUSPECT HELD

David Roy, 44-year-old father of two girls, after being questioned since midnight Wednesday, was charged with mistreating a 9-year-old playmate of the slain girl.

The arraignment took place in the small office of Justice Harry Brazzell and Roy was ordered held in $8000 double surety for the January sitting of the Somerset county grand jury.

Shortly after this another suspect, a Cambridge, Mass., pedlar, was released. He had been questioned at length but was absolved.

The Rev. E. C. Flood, pastor of the Methodist-Episcopal church, was finishing his sermon when Lieutenant Frost of the State highway patrol rushed into the funeral home and whispered with the undertaker.

He then ordered the removal of the girl's body from the house held up until he returned.

An hour later he returned accompanied by a man and woman who reported seeing a local man with a girl of the victim's description early Monday night.

They stood above the little white casket and whispered together.

Then they turned to the officers and said they could not be sure the Knights girl was the one they had seen.

Shown here as he continues firmly to deny guilty knowledge of the brutal murder of 12-year-old Annie Knights of Fairfield, Me., is David Roy, 44, married and the father of two children. He has admitted acquaintance with the girl and is held in $8000 bail on a charge involving one of her playmates. A Maine state trooper is grilling the prisoner.

GREEKS AWAIT KING'S RETURN

By Associated Press

Athens, Oct. 11—Jubilant Royalists looked today for word from King George II as to whether he would return immediately to the throne regained in a bloodless coup d'etat.

One unconfirmed report said the King would not return from London until a majority of the nation shouts, "Come Home!" A nationwide plebiscite on the question of restoring the monarchy has been set for November 3.

Another rumor had the King winging to Athens by airplane, but still another went the rounds that he feared to become a puppet of General George Kondylis, author of yesterday's swift overthrow of the 11-year-old republic.

Adherents of the monarchy in Athens and the rest of the country demonstrated vociferously with cries of "Long live King George!" The celebrations continued long after the curfew hour last night.

General Kondylis, former minister of war, who assumed the regency, said his government would be temporary pending the King's return.

From Paris came a report that King George was refusing to return in view of the circumstances under which the coup was effected, saying Greece could get a king in the person of Prince Nicholas, George's uncle and father of the former Princess Marina, now the Duchess of Kent.

Kondylis issued a statement to the public recommending that it "continue orderly pursuits" and hold no mass meetings.

guns swinging. There were 14 girls and two men there.

"Put your hands up and keep them high," one bandit warned.

John C. Duke, of Concord square, South End, the factory watchman, made a move for his gun.

"Lie down on your stomach or you'll get it," he was told.

He fell on his stomach.

MONEY BEING SORTED

The payroll money was on four desks, where four girls were sorting it for the envelopes.

Behind the desks sat Jean Miller of Fuller street, Brookline; Betty Ruthfield of Johnston road, Dorchester; Josephine Paluso of Church street, Dorchester, and Sylvia Bloom of Grandview road, Jamaica Plain.

"All up!" ordered one gunman.

COINS IGNORED

One bandit moved swiftly between the four desks, scooped all currency in sight into a bag, ignored the silver.

"Okay," he said.

The pair backed to the door, backed into the phone office and through it, the third bandit following.

Miss Barry, the instant the gun was removed from her back, dashed from the switchboard towards a stairway, crying:

"Robbery! Holdup!"

CATCH AUTO NUMBER

Girls peering from the factory window caught the number of the machine—666,106.

First police on the scene, Sergeant James V. Crowley, Detectives William Crowley, Stanley Slack, flashed the number to headquarters.

Radio directed all cruising cars to close in on the Roxbury Crossing section.

A short time later the car was found abandoned in front of 11 Tetlow street in the Fenway. Persons living in the vicinity said they saw three or four men dash from it and run in different directions.

FENWAY AREA SEARCHED

The radio directed search concentrated in the Fenway area, with several apartment houses being combed.

On the stairway leading from the Trimount factory offices to Station street, police found five undischarged machine gun bullets apparently spilled by one gunman during the flight.

Koner, chauffeur for George W. Goldberg, one of the company partners, was one of those who ran to windows to take the license number of the get-away machine.

The watchman, Duke, was on the premises a year ago last December when $12,518 was stolen in a similar holdup.

One of the factory employes, at a window after the gunmen ran for their machine, threw a heavy pair of shears that cut through the roof of the car.

Michael Dalleceo, of Oak street, Needham, former employe of the company, was sitting outside the office, observed the holdup and shouted a warning in other departments of the factory.

The currency stolen was in $5, $10 and $20 bills and had been delivered from a bank in an armored car shortly before the holdup.

Phone Girl's Own Story Of Roxbury Holdup

Miss Freda Barry of Montebello road, Jamaica Plain, telephone operator at the Trimount Clothing Company in Roxbury, was the first employe encountered by the holdup trio that robbed the plant of $14,830 today.

She gave police a good description of the three bandits. She was employed by the clothing company when the previous holdup occurred, in 1933.

"All three of the men appeared to be between 25 and 35 years of age," she said.

"I was sitting at the switchboard when they appeared all at once—and showed pistols.

"One of them said 'All quiet there—this is a holdup.'

"Then one of them came around and snatched my headset off. One stayed at my side and the other two went down the hall toward the payroll room."

Miss Barry described the bandits as follows:

No. 1—About 30 years of age; 5 feet 8 inches tall; wore dark gray sweater and dark hat; appeared to be the leader;

No. 2—About 25; dark-blue overalls and light gray cap; dark complexion; did no talking;

No. 3—About 35; 5 feet 4 inches tall; wore light tan zipper sweater coat and light gray hat.

Why Didn't Dionne Buy This House?

By Associated Press

Lyndonville, Vt., Oct 11—Mr. Dionne should have bought a house from the firm "Scott M. Farnum & Wife."

Besides the unique manner of signing their lumber firm's name, the Farnums have just employed a novel method of selling a house. The terms to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Grant, newlyweds, were:

Twenty-five dollars down and $10 monthly for four years. No interest, no taxes and the warranty deed at the end of that time.

The first baby born in the house would get $5, while twins and triplets would get $10 and $25, respectively.

Quintuplets? The Grants could have the house and $100 to boot.

Woman, 65, Saved; Eight Flee Blaze

Eight persons were driven to the street scantily clad today when fire broke out in a St. Botolph street, Back Bay, apartment house.

Mrs. Theodore Greenhood, 65, was carried to the street by Henry L. Watson, of Jamaica Plain; a taxi-driver, who discovered the fire.

Another cab driver, Alton P. Hanlon, of South street, Roslindale, escorted the other occupants of the house to the street.

The second floor was occupied by Mrs. Greenhood, her husband, and two sons, Samuel and Morris, who owns the building.

Four men, living in the third floor, were forced to flee their quarters when billowing smoke poured up the stairway.

ARMS EMBARGO ON ITALY ADOPTED BY LEAGUE

get arms from Germany through Austria via the overland train route.

The arms embargo, as outlined in the Roosevelt proclamation, is divided into six categories.

The committee of 16 met again for a short session this afternoon, and created two technical committees, one a board composed of military experts from Britain, France, Russia and Spain for handling the embargo on arms, and the other to direct financial penalties, composed of Britain, France, Canada, South Africa, Holland, Rumania, and Poland.

The committee intends to forbid the re-exportation of arms to Italy, and the various governments will be asked to inform Geneva of the measures adopted for applying the embargo against Italy.

The full penalties co-ordinating committee of 50 met this evening and formally adopted the sub committee report imposing the arms embargo on Italy and lifting the embargo against Ethiopia.

OVERTURES TO U. S.

It was believed states such as the United States, which applied an embargo on both belligerents, would be asked to lift their embargoes on Ethiopia tomorrow. France and Britain also had halted arms shipments to both disputants.

Other states will be asked to accept arms orders from Ethiopia but to refuse them to Italy. It was believed all Italian arms contracts now being worked on would be cancelled.

Although the United States was to be asked to lift its embargo against Ethiopia, it was doubted here that such action would be taken by the Roosevelt administration.

It was pointed out the original intention of the American embargo —on both parties—was to preserve American neutrality.

ALBANIANS BACK ITALY

There was a new split in the anti-Italian lineup today when the Albanian delegate, Madras Frasheri, minister to Rome, told the League Assembly his country could not associate itself with penalties against Mussolini and joined Austria and Hungary in the opposition to sanctions.

Thus the array against Italy was reduced from 51 to 50 nations.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi, the Italian delegate, whose last-minute plea for a more elastic League covenant fell on deaf ears, entrained for Rome with six associate delegates, but Italian circles said this does not mean that Italy intends now to leave the League.

Actual penalties were begun by Great Britain last night on the radio front.

The British government choked off a broadcast to the United States by Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Il Duce's chief representative at Geneva.

The United Kingdom Post Office, at the last minute, refused to relay his words. Aloisi had asked to wished to explain Italy's case in the Ethiopian situation.

With Britain and Soviet Russia pressing for rigorous and quick application of sanctions, it was learned also that Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff of the Soviet Union is rushing here determined to cut off the Italian navy's chief source of fuel oil.

Litvinoff, accompanied by a group of Russian experts, is due in Geneva tomorrow. He will call for strong economic penalties, it was understood. Up to the present, the Soviet Union has been the principal source of oil for Italy.

U. S. DECLINES SEAT

The United States, it was reported, was sounded out on whether she would be willing to sit on the co-ordination committee, but refused.

After hearing the Albanian delegate's statement today the assembly was adjourned—not dissolved—so that members are held in readiness to meet again at a call from Chairman Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia in case of any emergency.

Premier Pierre Laval returned to Paris after the assembly session, but first held a conference with Captain Eden, in which it was understood that a United France-British front on the uncharted ground the league is now treading was pledged once more.

Closing the assembly, Benes answered some of the points in Aloisi's speech yesterday, then summarized the historic action of the League:

"First, four states, Italy, Austria, Hungary and Albania stated they were against sanctions.

"Second, 50 states, members of the assembly and present at its meeting, condemned Italy and accepted the application of sanctions."

Benes concentrated on Aloisi's reiterated charge that insufficient attention had been paid to the Italian memorandum calling Ethiopia a barbarous nation, where slavery flourished and laws were unenforceable, not entitled to equality of treatment with Italy.

The assembly chairman said the memorandum not only was carefuly studied by the League Council, but also by the different council committees.

He said the committee of five, however, had not examined the Italian note since its task was to find a basis of conciliation, and to make suggestions for a solution of the conflict itself. This was facilitated by Ethiopia's request for assistance, he asserted.

Failure of the conciliation committee forced the council to proceed as it did, in complete accord with the covenant, he said.

Since the co-ordination committee was now functioning, Benes said, the task reserved for the assembly had therefore been accomplished.

Official announcement of both moves was expected shortly. Japan's decision to open direct diplomatic relations between Tokyo and Addis Ababa was interpreted in diplomatic circles as a rebuff to Italy.

YOUTH CRUSHED TO DEATH IN LIFT

Michael Ricatti, 18, of 66 Frankfort street, East Boston, was crushed to death today between a freight elevator and the elevator guard rail on the fifth floor of a building at 182 Hanover street, North End.

The youth, employed by Vincent Casto, pastry manufacturer, who occupies both the second and fifth floors, was caught by the head with his legs dangling in the shaft.

Casto, down on the second floor, heard screams, and when he ran to the elevator shaft blood dripped on his right arm.

Looking up, he saw the legs of the boy kicking convulsively.

Casto raced upstairs, shouting for help as he ran, and released the youth. Meanwhile other workers in the building sent emergency calls for police and doctors.

When an ambulance arrived from Haymarket Relief Hospital young Ricatti was pronounced dead. The entire right side of his skull and face had been crushed.

How League Can Enforce Penalties Against Italy

By Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 11—Here is the status of sanctions against Italy as the League of Nations staff begins deliberations:

(1) Sanctions authorized by the League Covenant, now that Italy has been found guilty of violation Article 12: Anything from mild economic restraint to actual war against the aggressor by any or all of the League members.

(2) Sanctions likely to be applied: The general staff is expected to recommend international "buy-no-Italian-goods" boycotts as a first step.

Some states may actually forbid imports from Italy. Recommendation of an international arms embargo against Italy with simultaneous lifting of the arms embargoes against Ethiopia also is likely.

(3) Sanctions already applied: Great Britain applied "radio sanctions" early today against Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation to Geneva, when he attempted to broadcast a speech to America via an English station. It refused the use of its station.

Two non-members, Brazil and the United States, have taken steps interpreted in League circles as near-sanctions.

President Roosevelt admonished American citizens to stay off Italian ships.

Brazil was reported to have cancelled a meat supply agreement with Italy.

FIN. COM. HITS MAYOR, SEES 'TRICKERY'

"Political trickery" was charged to Mayor Mansfield today by the finance commission in connection with the alleged award of a contract for widening entrances to the Sumner tunnel without advertising for bids.

The contract was awarded to "a political favorite," according to a statement made by Chairman E. Mark Sullivan of the commission, who added:

"From information already in possession of the commission, the commission knows that a satisfactory explanation cannot be made."

The contract, it is stated in a letter from the commission to Mayor Mansfield, was given to the contractor, B. F. Hanrahan of East Boston, two or three days before the city council even had adopted an order recommended by the mayor, appropriating $7500 for the work.

When the complaint of the commission was first registered with the mayor on September 20, the mayor explained that the public works commissioner was away on his vacation.

The commission waited two weeks and then reminded the mayor of the matter, whereupon, according to Chairman Sullivan, the mayor pleaded for an additional 24 hours before the matter should be made public.

There has yet been no answer from Mayor Mansfield, the chairman declared today in releasing the Finance Commission report.

Blind Swain Held For Murder Trial

Forrest R. Wells, 30, of Detroit, blind street musician, pleaded not guilty today in Superior Court, when arraigned on an indictment charging him with the murder of his sweetheart, Hazel Martin, also known as Helen Wells.

Wells is alleged to have pushed or thrown the woman from a third-floor window of Hotel Clarendon last July 15.

A picture of dejection, Wells was led into court today by a court officer and stood at the rail, with both hands grasping the top.

In a voice almost inaudible he pleaded after the charge had been read.

Judge John H. Gibbs then held him without bail for trial November 12, and he was returned to Charles street jail.

U. S. Consulate Burns

Nogales, Mex., Oct. 11 (AP)—The United States consulate, a large warehouse and several small buildings were destroyed by fire of undetermined origin today.

FACTS

Washington, Oct. 11 (US)—President Roosevelt announced that his goal was to put 3,500,000 men to work by November 1.

Congress voted him $4,800,000,000 for this purpose.

WPA announced today that 1,126,334 men had been put to work in the last 70 days.

That is an average of 16,089 men per day.

In order to fulfill Mr. Roosevelt's announced plan, 2,373,706 men will have to be placed in the next 70 days.

That would be an average of 118,685 every day.

WPA officials in Massachusetts and other states protested to Washington that several thousand men are being laid off because of Washington's failure to provide money and approve works projects.

OBEY OATH, B. U. FACULTY TOLD

Obedience to the Teachers' Oath Bill was urged by President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University, who considers the bill "silly, stupid and an insult to American teachers."

He asked his professors to obey the law simply because it is a law.

Then, in what was technically a report of the affairs of the university during the 1934-35 scholastic year, he launched into a bitter diatribe against the law.

President Marsh's principal objection to the bill is that it serves no useful purpose. He said, in part:

"If anyone thinks that oaths are not lightly taken and easily broken, let him attend a court trial, or watch some grand jury begin a graft investigation . . . and he will see a carnival of perjury.

"The fact is, the observer will discover that men . . . to build up a political machine, will trample honor and religion underfoot. They will pile perjury on perjury, until the public is confronted with a malodorous mountain of iniquity."

Getting back to universal functions, he told the trustees, at the annual meeting at the Hotel Vendome, that financially the University has improved its standing, increased its scholarships, and appears to have withstood the depression.

Two New Infantile Cases

Two new cases of infantile paralysis were reported to Boston health authorities today. One is a Dorchester child and the other is in Roxbury. The two new cases brought the total since July 15 to 411.

Elaine Barrie Fined $3200

DIAMOND RING SEIZED BY U. S.

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 11—The Treasury said today that Elaine Barrie, 19-year-old admirer of John Barrymore, had paid the government $3200 for failing to declare a diamond ring she brought into this country after a trip with the actor in Cuba.

With her mother, Miss Barrie was a guest aboard the 53-year-old actor's yacht Infanta when it cruised to Havana in May.

On June 6, treasury spokesmen said, she arrived in Miami as a passenger of Pan-American Airways.

"The Customs Bureau received information that she had brought in a diamond ring which she had not declared for duty," an official narrated. "The ring's value in this country was appraised at $1600.

"Miss Barrie was interviewed by a representative of the bureau in New York. When she could not give a satisfactory explanation of her failure to declare the jewelry, her ownership of it was forfeited and she was advised that she would have to pay a personal penalty of $1600 and an additional $1600 if she wanted to keep the ring.

"She paid the $3200 and the ring was released to her."

New York, Oct. 11—It's perfectly true, Elaine Barrie said today, that she paid the government a $3200 fine for failure to declare a diamond ring she brought into this country last June.

What is more, the young woman added, John Barrymore gave her the money to pay the fine because "you see, the ring was my engagement ring from him."

'FLAG WAR' BOY HAS HARVARD INSTRUCTOR

Expelled from school because of his refusal to salute the flag, Carlton B. Nichols, Jrr., eight, of Lynn, resumed his studies today under a private tutor, a Harvard graduate.

Meanwhile, the Saugus school committee members were preparing for a special meeting tonight to decidew hat action would be taken in the cases of six Saugus schoolboys and girls who also refuse to salute the flag.

It is possible the committee will follow the precedent set in Lynn and expel the six children—Costa Mitchell, 12; his sister, Constance, 11; their twin brothers, Philemon and Philip, nine; Edward Gott, 13, and his sister, Shirley, 12.

BALK AT SALUTE DAILY

The four Mitchell children and Shirley Goss attend the Roby school, where the flag salute ceremony is held every day and where they refuse daily to participate.

Edward Gott attends Central Junior high school, where the flag is saluted only once a week. Thus far he has refused once to salute.

Like the Nichols boy, whose Harvard tutor the mother would not identify, the Mitchels and the Gotts are members of the religious sect known as Jehovah's Witnesses.

It was brought out today that Saugus had received several suggestions that the six recalcitrant children be sent to reform school.

Mrs. Costa Mitchell, mother of the four Mitchell children, declared this could not be done as it was contrary to the bill of rights, which guarantees religious freedom.

"We shall continue to stand by the principal laid down in the Bible," Mrs. Mitchell said. "The children have been brought up to believe in this teaching and shall not forsake it.

"Many people have said my husband and I forced the children to take this stand because of our own feelings and thoughts of Jehovah's Witnesses.

TOOK OWN WAY

"On the contrary, they have taken their own way. They have talked it over among themselves. There has been no coercion of any sort. They refused to salute the flag on their own free will."

In Boston, where, it is understood officials of Jehovah's Witnesses, have ordered pupils of that sect to refuse to salute the flag, no examples have been reported as yet.

'DERRICK' SLOT MACHINES OUT

Slot machines of the type which permit operators to manipulate small derricks in an effort to obtain candy and prizes are a violation of the gaming statutes in the opinion of Judge Arthur P. Stone of East Cambridge district court.

Judge Stone so notified the police chiefs of Cambridge, Arlington and Belmont today.

Many of the machines are in operation in those cities and seizures on the basis of the court's ruling are expected unless they are removed.

The judge's opinion was based on a court demonstration put on by Belmont police in a test case two weeks ago, and on visits to stores to watch the machines operated.

A copy of his opinion was sent to Albert E. Hughes, counsel for one company marketing them.

DELANEY SENDS Protest to Conant

John L. Delaney, Cambridge school committeeman, was awaiting a reply today from President James B. Conant of Harvard to a protest registered against Dean Henry W. Holmes of Harvard.

Delaney, a candidate for re-election, objected to the writing by Dean Holmes on Harvard university stationary of letters which advocated the candidacies of three other contestants in the school committee election.

BANKERS TOLD To Advertise

Additional bank advertising is essential to stimulate individual home building and home owning, officials of co-operative bank and building and loan leagues of nine states declared at a meeting in the Parker House.

Well directed bank advertising under present conditions is an economy, not an extravagance; the volume of increased business readily offsets the expense involved, the meeting was told.

They were pulling a cart full of apples on Center street, Quincy, when a truck which, police said, was operated by Philip Appel of 67 Washington street, struck them.

EX-CAMBRIDGE SCREEN STAR SEEKS DECREE FROM HUSBAND

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

GiGi Parrish, titian-topepd screen actress, a former Cambridge girl, has taken the first step toward being a film star. She has decided to divorce her husband, Dillwyn, brother of Anne Parrish, novelist, because he "interferes" with her work.

Cambridge Film Star Asks Decree

From the humblest of beginnings in an impoverished home in Cambridge, GiGi Parrish, red-headed beauty, whose life has been a veritable fairytale of good-fortune, took the next step toward movie stardom today.

She has decided to slough off her author-husband, Dillwyn Parrish, because he "interferes" with her moving picture work.

When she was eight years old, in 1920, she smiled her way into the heart of William Paul, Philadelphia philanthropist.

He adopted her, and gave her the best education, travel and a series of exclusive schools for young ladies money could supply. She met her husband when she was 13.

When she was 16, Parrish, even then a successful novelist, could hold out no longer.

Police Death Driver Held for Jury

James L. Davey, 39, of Hancock street, Wollaston, today was ordered held for the grand jury on charges arising out of the death of Patrolman James D. Hughes, of East Boston, killed by a hit-and-run motorist on September 10. Davey was before Judge Charles Brown at a private hearing in East Boston court, charged with manslaughter. The court declined jurisdiction on four other charges, drunkenness, operating under the influence, driving to endanger and leavig the scene of the accident. Bail of $2000 was provided.

Selvitella Hands Out the Cigars

A baby girl was born to Mrs. Henry Selvitella, wife of City Councillor Selvitella, of East Boston, at Boston City Hospital today. The new arrival is the fourth child born to the Selvitellas and the third girl. Both baby and mother were reported as doing well.

Provisional Junior Leaguers To Start Training Course

By BETTY ALDEN

THE PERIOD OF EXPECTANT, hopeful waiting is now over . . . the all-important invitations have been sent and each little debutante knows the joyful or saddening news, as to whether or not she has been accepted as a provisional member of the Junior League . . . If she received one of the coveted invitations announcing that "the pleasure of her company is requested at tea at the Junior League on Monday, October 14," she knows she has been accepted by the committee on admissions and that she is well on the road to social success . . .

PEGGY CAPPER

There is always quite a lot of excitement and disappointment in the decisions of the admissions committee and in the past years some of today's most social women were turned down on their first application . . .

Each debutante who comes up for membership has to have four members of the Junior League write to the admissions committee about her . . . one to propose her name, one to second the proposal and two letters of recommendation . . . If she fails to be admitted the first year, she has two more chances, as her letters are automatically considered by the committee in the two succeeding years, and there are a number of older girls taken in each year . . .

While they are provisionals, the debs are subjected to a training course which helps them to reach a more complete knowledge of the connection of the Junior League movement with the social problems in the city . . .

So, on Monday when the provisionals make their first official appearance at the league, they will have a very full afternoon . . . They will meet the President, Rachel Warner, and the first vice-president, Ellen de Normandie, to hear a little of the history of the league and its purpose and aims, and then they will perform their first duty, that of electing one of their lot as chairman of the provisionals and one as vice-chairman . . .

At 3:30 they will hear a lecture on league dramatics by Helenka Adamowska, to which all the league members have been invited, and following this meeting their will be a tea and reception for the board of managers of the league and the heads of the various departments, to which every member is invited . . .

The league does not disclose the list of provisionals but we happen to know that among the happy debs who have received the coveted bids are Peggy Capper, Anne Howard and Rebecca Ames . . .

Social Leaders Gather at Luncheon

SOCIALITES FOLLOWED one another in a steady stream into the Ritz bar, yesterday afternoon, to keep rendezvous with intimate friends and enjoy an apertif before munching in the blue and silver dining room upstairs . . . Anne Howard and Olivia Morgan, with two escorts, occupied a corner table, and the last heard from them was the most persuasive pleading on the part of the girls trying to induce their boy friends to prolong their lunch hour to permit a foursome at a nearby quiet tea room . . . Anne, the debutante who "came out" amidst such splendor last Friday at the Casino in Magnolia, wore a plum and beige checked suit with a large plum felt hat, sweeping up from her forehead . . .

Mrs. William C. Cox and a group of young Cohasset matrons found plenty to laugh and joke about as they conversed over their cocktails . . .

In the dining room many prominent socialites lingered over their luncheon in the quiet, pleasant atmosphere . . . Mrs. Louis Curtis was an attractive figure in a green and black coarse plaid swagger suit with an emerald velveteen blouse and a black off-the-face hat . . .

Mrs. Henry Laughlin, who was with Mr. Laughlin and the latter's mother, was extremely chic in black velveteen with a crimson scarf and an antelope pillbox hat . . . Mrs. Charles Pettit of Framingham Center was with Mrs. Herbert Harrington of Weston, and others noted were Mrs. Lawrence Dotey of Swampscott, Mrs. Richard Thompson of Concord, N. H., with her two little daughters . . . Mrs. Thompson is the former Polly Pierce, a belle of Beacon street less than a decade ago, and was most attractive in her Scotch plaid coat, the material of which exactly matched the little coats and pleated skirts worn by her children . . .

Ames-Henry Ceremony Tomorrow

LAST SATURDAY Betty Ames had her day, at her coming-out party at the family seat in North Easton, and tomorrow her brother, John S. Ames, Jr., will share the social spotlight with his bride, Isabel Biddle Henry of Philadelphia . . .

Many Bostonians will witness the ceremony which unites these two young people in marriage in St. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, Pa., at noon . . .

As long as we are so far away we don't feel that we are letting the cat out of the bag by describing the bridal costume, which is of white satin, with a tight bodice fastened with a row of tiny buttons down the front, long puffed sleeves and a round collar of heirloom lace . . . Her veil will be attached to a high coronet headdress and she will carry white roses . . .

Preceding her to the altar will be her sister, Julia Biddle Henry, and the bridegroom's sister, Rebecca Ames, both attired in while velvet gowns with ruffled collars and long puffed sleeves, picture hats and arm bouquets of pastel flowers . . .

David Ames of North Easton will serve his brother as best man, and the ushers, mostly all from Boston, include Oliver Ames, Colloredo Mansfield, Malcolm B. Stone, Samuel H. Wolcott, Jr., Charles Francis Adams, Jr., Oren Root, Ephron Catlin, 3d, who has just become engaged to Priscilla Saltonstall, Warren Delano, William S. Patten, Alexander Forbes and Reginald Fincke, Jr. . . .

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Charlton Henry of Chestnut Hill and was presented at the Court of St. James in May, 1930 . . .

Mr. Ames graduated from Milton and Harvard and is a member of the latter's most exclusive clubs . . . He is a nephew of Mrs. Louis Frothingham and grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Ames of Boston.

ROAD CLEARED IN ROOSEVELT SMASHUP

Officials of the Narrow Guage railroad today cleared employes of any blame in connection with an auto crash involving James and John Roosevelt.

John R. Sullivan, superintendent of the railroad, said the train crew was not responsible in any way for the crash.

A demand that the grade crossing in Maverick street, East Boston, where the accident occurred Wednesday night, be eliminated, will be made at the next meeting of the Boston city council.

Councilor Henry Selvitella of East Boston, will introduce an order calling for the construction of a bridge or underpass.

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin stood by his decision not to investigate the crash. He said the accident "wasn't serious enough" to warrant an inquiry.

The auto broke through the warning gates at the crossing, and struck the first car of a four-car train inbound from Lynn. Neither John, a sophomore at Harvard, nor James was seriously injured.

"Boondoggling" Invades WPA Relief Jobs Here

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

This is an ERA whist party, staged with relief funds on Boston Common. The WPA, under new allotments, will duplicate this type of relief projects. There was nothing like this in the good old "horse and buggy" days at which President Roosevelt cast a slur, but the four women whist players, who are not on relief, are wearing costumes of that period to lend color to the affair. Park Commissioner William P. Long is in the center background.

SMALL TOWNS GIVEN MOST MONEY

By JOHN H. NOONAN AND ALAN C. FRAZER

(Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American)

This is going to be a great winter for "boondoggling" in Massachusetts.

There has been plenty of it under the ERA, but the boondoggling of the ERA won't hold a candle to boondoggling under the WPA.

So much ... dollars will go for boondoggling in this state under the WPA.

"Boondoggling" is the name slipped on extraordinary relief projects during a New York investigation last summer.

For example—a Rockport artist, hired with relief funds to paint rocks for scenery. There was a boondoggler. That particular boondoggler quit in disgust when the ERA ceased supplying him with a motorboat.

Small Towns Gain

You may be surprised to learn that the town of Hawley in the western part of the state, which has been allotted $3,091 for boondoggling projects, has a population of 313. Not 313 persons on relief, mark you; but a total of 313 in the town.

... with 312 inhabitants ... to the extent of $638 while the 30th residents of Granby will see $10,550 worth of boondoggling during the next few months.

Most of the boondoggling of the WPA comes under the Community Service Program.

Nearly $2,000,000 has already been allotted at Washington for Community Service projects in Massachusetts, and most of these are in small towns in the western part of the state, while 300 cities and towns are set to be granted allotments, if so, are to be treated alike.

Not all of the Community Service projects are boondoggling. But most of them are. Not all boondoggling is absolutely useless, looking at it from the point of view of the taxpayer. But most of it is; and it's all extraordinary, to put it mildly.

Movies for pageants theatrical group singing, wheel parties, ping-pong tournaments, dog races and lectures.

The ERA wrote a new chapter in boondoggling when it sent a group of young people to sketch the grave of Mother Goose in the Old Granary burying-ground.

And a certain relief worker wrote another when he induced his ERA boss to let him work on a special project of his own—a study of ways of making clam chowder.

A course of ... has been planned for the avowed purpose of acquainting ... women ... conned to travel in Europe with their historical treasure-trove right here at home.

What price boondoggling!

Taxpayers won't know, until they read this, that they have been supporting boondoggiers to boondoggle them right out of more taxes.

These boondoggiers have been ringing doorbells asking how old you are, how many rooms you have, what your floor is made of, and whether you are worrying about a mortgage.

They show slips on which are stamped these words:

"This information is strictly confidential."

But the assessors get it.

Check Up Taxes

And the boondoggling doesn't end there. Instead of taking your word about that mortgage, the ERA has another boondoggling project which keeps men at the registry of deeds, checking up on you.

Thus it becomes evident that boondoggling is an art, but it is well on its way to becoming a science, for in one city a batch of boondoggiers are trying to figure out how to lay 15 miles of sidewalks along a highway three miles long.

And one of the biggest boondoggling projects is that in which men and women go around telling playground supervisors and others in charge of boys and girls "how it should be done."

Extraordinary thing, this relief! After setting aside millions for this type of "work," the WPA has had to call in army engineers to find out what's wrong with the WPA.

WOMAN LOSES $70,000 IN 'GOLD HUNT'

Climaxing three weeks of secret investigation, a special sitting of the Suffolk County grand jury was convened today to probe a gigantic "treasure salvaging" fraud alleged to have been engineered by three prominent Boston stock operators.

To the grand jury Assistant Attorney-General Henry F. Spalding is understood to have presented evidence that the three men in the past three years have sold more than $100,000 worth of "rights in the sunken treasure scheme."

One of the victims, according to the assistant attorney-general and to Lieutenant-Inspector John A. Dorsey of the Boston police, is Miss Mary Gray Morrison, 70-year-old author, who lives at the Hotel Ludlow in St. James street, Back Bay.

From her, the investigators say, they learned the schemers secured stocks and paid-up co-operative bank certificates worth a total of $70,000—most of which they sold, against her wishes.

Solicited by the three men, she finally was taken to Cape Cod, she said, and the place off Nantucket where the steamer Port Hunter was sunk in 1917 was pointed out to her.

The ship, she was told, had a valuable cargo aboard, including gold and steel rails which, she was assured, would be as good as new. All that the salvaging company needed to reclaim the cargo was financial backing.

She took them, she told the investigators, to the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company and there turned over to them dividend paying stocks valued then at $60 a... in the market, but valued now at about $38,000.

At the time she turned over the stocks they paid her the dividends on them for two months. Since then they have paid her nothing.

A short time after surrendering the stocks she went to safety deposit box again and could not find five $2000 paid-up co-operative bank certificates.

She went to the men and they admitted eventually that they had the certificates, but told her that unless she signed a receipt for them and allowed them to hold the certificates in reserve they would be unable to go on with their operations.

So plausible was their talk that she signed the receipt on condition that the certificates would not be sold, transferred or pledged. But later she learned that not only had these been sold, but that some of her stocks had been sold.

She has been unable to recover anything, she declared.

Watch-Ward Rebuffed in "Bingo" War

The Watch and Ward Society was denied complaints in municipal civil court today against two men and a woman whom they charged with setting up and promoting a lottery.

The complaints sought were in connection with the $5000 "bingo" sweepstakes conducted by the American Legion in Cambridge nine days ago.

Jefferson Parker, agent for the society, testified he purchased two one-dollar books of tickets from W. D. Proctor and G. A. Boardman, Western Union employes, and a 25-cent book of tickets from Miss Margaret Donnelly, employed as a clerk by the state department of American Legion, at the State House.

In denying the complaints, Judge James H. Devlin instructed Agent Parker:

"If you can show me at any time that 'racketeers' were behind such a promotion, or that it was for private gain, I will take action."

SOUTH END ROW, VICTIM DYING

Out of a battle between two loggers in a Shawmut avenue South End, rooming house one of the lodgers was taken to City Hospital today in a dying condition and the other arrested.

At the hospital, physicians said that James Moulton, 54, is suffering from a fractured skull and probably will die.

He was hit on the head with a hammer, wielded, police charge, by Walter A. Clark, 57, who is charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, with intent to kill.

Other lodgers told police that Moulton had been quarreling with the landlady when Clark intervened. Incensed, Moulton turned his attention to Clark and a fist fight followed, the lodgers said, ending when Clark is alleged to have picked up a hammer and struck Moulton.

ROLLING DEEPER into Emperor Haile Selassie's domains, the well-oiled Italian fighting machine is advancing from the north with the steady indominatable steps that mark a conquering army. With relentless purpose Mussolini's legions have in turn occupied Adigrat, Aduwa, Entiscio, Daro-Tacle, Amba-Scebat and Axsum. ITALIANS CLAIM SURRENDER OF TRIBE CHIEFS

By International News Service

Rome, Oct. 11—The surrender of two important Ethiopian leaders and their respective armies was called officially by the Italian government today in "Communique No. 17."

While all Italy discussed the League of Nations stand against Italy and government spokesmen hastened to deny rumors of dissension in the Italian high command in East Africa, a reassuring statement was published to show all was going well with the Ethiopian campaign.

The communique gave the first official Italian casualty list for the entire campaign to date, enumerating 30 dead, 70 wounded and 33 missing.

GENERALS SURRENDER

The surrendering generals were Haile Selassie Gugsa (not related to the Ethiopian emperor), and Kassa Araia, both of whom were claimed to have joined the Italian forces with their respective armies on the northern front yesterday.

The communique stated:

"Yesterday, October 10, while we were continuing to work in the rear zone for arrangements for quarters and repairing roads and securing a water supply, detachments of the native army corps, both infantry and cavalry, pursued the work of mopping up in front of our line, dispersing several bands of armed Ethiopians.

"Towards sunset Haile Selassie Gugsa, chief of a vast region of eastern Tigre province, presented himself at our advance posts and put himself with his armed warriors—amounting to several thousands—under orders of General Santini.

"Soon after Kassa Araia passed with his armed followers to our side.

CASUALTIES LIGHT

"Figures collected over all the vast front after four days of the advance are as follows: Thirty dead, of whom five are nationals and 25 natives; 70 wounded, of whom 50 are natives, and 33 missing natives.

"Arms captured included one cannon, one machine gun, 134 rifles and 30 cases of ammunition.

"Reorganization of the occupied zone with ever increasing spontaneous help from the clergy of the populations continues.

"Desertions from the Ethiopian ranks continues. News of foreign origin of desertions of our Askaris (pightless, native soldiers), is as are all false, such reports, false.

"In Agria that an Italian aircraft crash fallen near Aksum are into

"In the next few days the general command will be transferred to the conquered territory.

Italy's Crown Prince Looks Up to War-Bound Troops

Crown Prince Umberto of Italy looks up at a troop ship sailing from Naples as he bids farewell to the soldiers who are departing for the war in Ethiopia. The Prince with a smile answers the roaring cheers from the packed vessel which will, alas, bring back many wounded and fever-stricken youths. The picture taken from a nearby elevation gives an odd slant to the figures therein.

Washington, Oct. 11—The administration's neutrality policies today crystallized into a frank determination to stop all trade by the American people with any warring nation.

Secretary of State Hull warned commercial interests not to push trade with either Italy or Ethiopia.

In a formal statement, Hull said the President's proclamation that Americans do business with warring nations at their own risk was issued in an effort to keep the United States out of war.

While the federal government has no power to prevent Americans from shipping goods to belligerent nations, Hull said, he struck sharply at statements by New York exporters that they intend to continue shipments to Italian ports regardless of the President's stand.

He decried any moves that might involve the United States in difficulties, and declared:

"The sooner the way is terminated, the sooner the restoration and stabilization of business in all parts of the world, which is infinitely more important than trade with the belligerents, will be brought about.

"The speedy restoration of more full and stable trade conditions and relationships among the nations I ahr far the most profitable of objectives for our people to visualize, in contrast with such risky and temporary trade as they might maintain with belligerent nations."

HAILE SPEEDS ENVOY

Italian Must Go Now, He Rules

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

Addis Ababa, Oct. 11—A high Ethiopian official said today that the government may be obliged to use force unless Luigi Vinci Gigliucci, the Italian minister to Ethiopia, leaves within the specified 48 hours.

Emperor Haile Selassie already had ordered the Italian envoy to get out of the country on the charge that his legation was the center for Italian espionage and that the legation radio was being used for unfriendly purposes.

Vinci, however, asked to remain until the Italian consular agent from Magalo arrived in the capital.

This plea, however, the government denied on the grounds that the agent's caravan cannot reach here within 10 days.

Haile Selassie assured Vinci of fullest protection, not only for himself and his attaches but for the Magalo consular agent as well. The French minister also offered to assume responsibility for the safety of the Magalo staff.

The Ethiopian government was determined not to permit Vinci to delay his departure further.

In the meantime the diplomatic corps offered to take over the protection of the Italian legation but not the general Italian interests.

The emperor declined to grant Vinci an audience, advising him all the business of the legation was finished and he therefore was only a private citizen.

The emperor, however, will accord him a special train and all dignities due a minister, provided he leaves within the specified time.

NOTIZIE ODIERNE DELLA GUERRA

This is an Italian translation of the Italian-Ethiopian war news which appears elsewhere in this paper today.

By FORMER LIEUTENANT GIOVANNI NANIA
Attivita' Al Fronte

L'AVANZATA CONTINUA

Malgrado le accidentalita' del terreno e le schermaglie qui e la' sostenute, convergendo dai diversi settori del confine somalo, le truppe italiane del Sud al comando del Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, continuano oggi, l'avanzata trionfale verso Jijiga e Harrar.

L'obiettivo principale dell'esercito italiano e' quello di poter raggiungere al piu' presto la linea ferroviaria Addis Abeba-Dijdbouti, ritenuta, d'importanza vitalissima.

Squadriglie di aeroplani da bombardamento precedono l'avanzata delle fanterie italiane.

Dispacci da Gorahai diretti all' Imperatore Haile' Selassie, dal comandante delle forze abissine meridionali, indicano parimente l'avanzata delle truppe italiane in fronte di Ogaden, e' generale ed impetuosa.

Gli aeroplani italiani-dicono gli stessi dispacci all'imperatore-hanno recato perdite immense all'esercito etiopico, in ispecie alle truppe scaglionate lungo il percorso del fiume Webbe Shibeli e nei distretti intorno a Jiamo e Tafara Katama.

TRANQUILLITA' A NORD

Informazioni diramate dall' Associated Press affermano, che le truppe italiane operanti a Nord hanno trascorso una giornata tranquillissima, dedide piu' che altro a consolidare le posizioni finora raggiunte, a costruire strade ea migliorare le condizioni disagevoli del luogo.

Malgrado tali informazioni, continuano a circolare le voci riportate dall' Agenzia Reuter, secondo le quali la citta' di Adua sarebbe stata fiaatturata da un' armata di 52,000 guerrieri abissini, e 2500 soldati italiani vi avrebbero trovato la morte. Tali notizie sono state recisamente smentite da altri rapporti che indicano come la citta' di Adua abbia trascorso una giornata del tutto tranquilla, restando in attesa della visita del Gen. Emilio De Bono, Comandante in Capo delle Truppe Coloniali, che risulta partito da Asmara per attendere alle cerimonie di commemorazione in onore dei 15,000 soldati italiani massacrati durante l'infausta lotta del 1896.

L'ALBANIA CONTRARIA ALLE SANZIONI

Si ha da Ginevra che il "comitato per le sanzioni" nominato dalla Lega delle Nazioni con l'intento di studiare le misure da applicarsi contro l'Italia, ha ricevuto un netto rifiuto da parte dell'Albania quando questa e' stata richiesta di unirsi alle altre potenze per un'azione concorde contro l'Italia. L'Austria e l'Ungheria avevano di gia' formalmente dato il loro voto contrario.

Ciononpertanto, agendo sotto la supervisione della delegazione Inglese che ha combattuto estremamente il problema delle sanzioni in seno a tutti i comitati della Lega, il "comitato per le sanzioni" continua i suoi lavori sperando di poter annunziare subito la prima serie delel misure da adottare.

Il "comitato per le sanzioni" ha eletto a suo presidente Augusto Vasconcellos del Portogallo ed ha nominato un sotto-comitato di 18 con l'incarico di considerare le "misure piu' immediate."

Il "sotto-comitato dei sedici" per l'applicazione delle sanzioni contro l'Italia, agendo senza un minuto di ritardo, ha deciso oggi, come primo passo, di adottare un embargo sulle armi destinate in Italia, del tutto simile a quello proclamato recentemente dal Presidente Roosevelt.

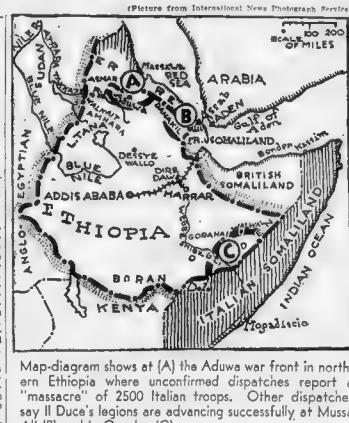
Tale decisione del sotto-comitato costringera' la quasi totalita' di tutte le nazioni del mondo a proibire l'esportazione delle armi di cui l'Italia potrebbe aver bisogno per continuare il conflitto in Etiopia.

Lo stesso Comitato ha deciso inoltre di togliere l'embargo sulle armi fin qui adottato contro l'Etiopia.

LE PERDITE ITALIANE

Secondo dati ufficiali pubblicati in giornali stranieri, le perdite italiane durante gli ultimi quattro giorni di avanzata, ammonterebbero: "Morti: 5 italiani e 25 indigeni; feriti: 20 italiani e 50 indigeni; dispersi: 33 indigeni."

Notizie ufficiali negano che un aeroplano italiano sia caduto nei pressi di Aksum, che il morale dei soldati fascisti abbia miniamente sofferto e che diserzioni in massa siano avvenute da parte delle truppe coloniali indigene. Risulta percontro che sul fronte della Somalia Italiana un numero considerevole di abissini abbiano chiesto protezione alle truppe italiane disertando le file dell' esercito etiopico



Map-diagram shows at (A) the Aduwa war front in northern Ethiopia where unconfirmed dispatches report a "massacre" of 2500 Italian troops. Other dispatches say Il Duce's legions are advancing successfully at Mussa Ali (B) and in Ogaden (C).

Bureaucracy

By Berton Braley

(Federal officeholders have increased more than 200,000 since 1932)—News item.

Bureaucrats! Bureaucrats!
Buzzing 'round like swarms of gnats,
In a multitude that waxes
Stinging us with swelling taxes.

Bureaucrats! Bureaucrats!
Making digests, plans and plates,
Bureaucrats who check and file
Useless records by the mile,
Useless records by the mile,
Till they'll wind us, pretty soon,
In a snug red-tape cocoon!

Bureaucrats! Bureaucrats!
Regulating clothes and hats,
Shoes and ships and socks and spats!
How we run our homes and flats!
How we educate our brats!
Mobs and herds of bureaucrats,
Like the Hamelin plague of rats.

Oh, for some Pied Piper who Would entice away this crew
In a crowd—or one by one—
To complete oblivion!

MAINE CENTRAL

Bond Plan ACCEPTED BY Holders

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

The decision of large institutional holders to support the refunding plan of the Maine Central Railroad for its $20,000,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds due December first practically assures its success.

Representatives of New England savings banks and insurance companies formed a committee to represent their interests in the matter, and it is understood they unanimously agreed to the plan with certain modifications. Their indorsement will undoubtedly result in a marked acceleration of deposits of the bonds.

The plan proposed by the Maine Central calls for payment to holders of series A 4½ per cent; series B 4½ per cent; series C 5 per cent, plus series D 6 per cent of $500 principal amount in new first mortgage and collateral 4 per cent sinking fund bonds due in 1945. Or, at their option, $500 in cash and $500 principal amount of new general mortgage bonds 4½ per cent bonds due in 1960. Maine Central is expected to receive fixed charge relief by acceptance of the plan, resulting in a further reduction in interest charges, as would strengthen the position of the northern New England carrier.

ANTIQUE THEFT GANG FOUND; 2 CONFESS

A series of antique robberies and holdups which terrorized the South Shore for more than three years were believed solved today with the alleged confession by two members of a gang.

State police, to whom the men allegedly confessed, are endeavoring to locate shops of 20 Greater Boston antique dealers who purchased the loot from the gang.

When the dealers are found, charges of receiving stolen goods will be preferred against them.

The confessions, police said, cleared up the robberies and thefts of money and valuables estimated at between $25,000 and $50,000 from summer homes of prominent families.

6 MORE INVOLVED

In the alleged confessions six other men were involved. Two of these are at present serving terms in institutions for larcenies.

The two men who allegedly confessed, Ernest A. Grassie and Antone Figueredo, Jr., both of Cohasset, appeared in Hingham court today charged with armed robbery and burglary. They were held in $5000 each for the grand jury.

In the written statement made, the men admitted the holdup of Hugo's restaurant in Scituate two years ago. Twenty-five guests were lined up and robbed at gunpoint, the holdup men escaping with $400 in cash and jewelry valued at more than $3000.

The alleged confession and other evidence will be presented to the Plymouth county grand jury by State Police.

NAMES OTHERS

Involved in the confession, police said, were Phillip Cappola of the North End, Michael De Leo of the West End, George E. Smith of Brockton, Harold Richards of Brockton, Samuel Castano of Brockton and Howard Snell of Rockland.

State police said Grassie and Figueredo would accompany them in a tour of Greater Boston while the two men point out shops of antique dealers to whom the loot was sold at ridiculously low prices.

When the shops are located, police said, they would apply for warrants against the owners.

Busy Day in East Boston for Old Man Stork

(Picture from International News Photograph service.)

All done foolin' is old Mr. Stork, when he visits the Strong Hospital, East Boston. He brings his babies two at a time—and here are just one day's sets of twins, both pairs arriving within a period of a few short hours. "Oldest" of the four are the little Wood sisters, in foreground, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wood of Bennington street, East Boston. Occupying rear seats in the spacious crib on wheels are the Green twins, son and daughter of Mrs. Joseph Green of Puritan avenue, Somerville.

NO ENTANGLING ALLIANCES

"I have ever deemed it fundamental for the United States never to take active part in the quarrels of Europe.

"Their political interests are entirely distinct from ours. Their mutual jealousies, their complicated alliances, their forms and principles of government, are all foreign to us.

"They are nations of Eternal war."

—THOMAS JEFFERSON, in a letter to President James Monroe.

United States Treasury Building

From 1900 up to 1934 the leaf tobacco used for cigarettes increased from 13,084,037 lbs. to 326,093,357 lbs.;
an increase of 2392%

It takes mild ripe tobacco to make a good cigarette.

During the year ending June 30, 1900, the Government collected from cigarette taxes
$3,969,191
For the year ending June 30, 1934, the same taxes were $350,299,442
an increase of 8725%
—a lot of money.

Cigarettes give a lot of pleasure to a lot of people.

More cigarettes are smoked today because more people know about them—they are better advertised.

But the main reason for the increase is that they are made better—made of better tobaccos; then again the tobaccos are blended—a blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos.

Chesterfield is made of mild, ripe tobaccos. Everything that science knows about is used in making it a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

We believe you will enjoy them.

Lewis Is Danno's Guest in Anniversary Brawl

This is a vital anniversary in the star-spangled career of young Dan O'Mahoney, the muscular miracle from Ballydehob, Ireland. It marks the birth-night of a professional opportunity that has earned him a place in his country's folklore and a pedestal in its Hall of Giants.

Austen Lake

It was in a Liverpool Music Hall a year ago that Danno used "Strangler" Lewis' pudgy person as a springboard to wrestling fortune. And it was a year ago that Lewis scored the last touchdown against Danno by dusting his spine on the floor.

So, it is fitting tonight that the year-old occasion should be celebrated at the Boston Garden when Danno, as the Union's head body-snatcher, will give his founder an anniversary match and a crack at some fresh spending funds.

Only the fuzzy old Strangler does not seem to be properly grateful, and is saying in the public journals how he will make the match a fish-pier brawl with fist sledgings and scientific muckerisms.

Danno's Discovery

I NEVER GET TIRED listening to Lewis tell how he mounted the stage in the musty Liverpool hall a year ago and sighted a stringy youth with a set of smooth muscles and a peach-blow complexion.

A dingy green wrapper draped over the kid's shoulders, and the grizzled old Strangler mused to himself: Well, this is a nice schoolboy and I will just give him a couple of gentle flips and maybe a doughnut twist and let him go home for some early sleep.

But the apple-cheeked lad, though crude, was unaccountably tough and with an elastic strength that belied his frogs'-leg muscles. And presently the old grampus found himself flopping on the floor like a freshly netted herring with the dazzle of the ring lights in his eyes.

"Eureka!" Shouted Bowser

INASMUCH AS THE BACK of Strangler's neck had brushed the mat only 19 times in his long career, and Danno's name was not even in the wrestling Blue Book, it made international news, and the night cables flashed it to Boston journals, where Paul Bowser's bright eyes saw it.

"Eureka!" chortled Paul, who was cudgelling his brain for some means of needling his dying industry.

"Eureka!" he bawled in the crumpled ear of Mr. Jack Albright, his deputy ticket manager, publicity-drummer and trouble chaser.

"Your an eeka, too," retorted Mr. Albright suspiciously. "What's an eeka?"

"I have found it," explained his master reverting to the literal classic translation.

And he had! So Paul sent over a male chaperon to coax Danno back. And presently he was uncrating him at the dock and launching a career that was more wonderful than Wonderland.

Strangler Asks for His Pajamas

THE STRANGLER RELATES how in that Liverpool night he came back into the ring after clearing the lint out of his brain, and twizzled Danno with a flap-jack twirl that landed the boy smack on his wishbone.

He held him there to let him soak, while the Cockney referee sent out for some sandwiches and a bowl of tea.

The Strangler says he finally asked the Cockney to send for his pajamas, because if he was going to sleep on Danno he wanted to be properly attired.

Now this sounds like gross libel, because in the intervening year none of the biggest burlies in the profession have so much as dunked Danno's backbone for the allotted three seconds, and he has swabbed the floor with everybody in the easy flourishes of a kitchen maid ringing out a mop.

Strangler says the referee agreed to count the fall if he would concede a draw and go home without any trouble. Strangler's story is that he was overwhelmed by a wave of tolerance and, thinking what a nice thing this would be for the kid, he said O. K.

As the Strangler tells it, he was reading the Liverpool Express next morning and discovered that he had been disqualified for failing to report for the final and deciding fall.

The Garden Party

BUT THERE ARE OTHER VERSIONS to the tale. One of which is that the old sea elephant blustered out of the hall in a high huff after taking a nifty plastering.

Which ever version is correct, it is common grammar school history that Danno picked Lewis up by the slack of his loose skin and used him to wipe the ring furniture when they met at the Garden some months ago.

He left the Strangler lying in a corner with his hide full of bottle caps, cigarette stubs and chewing-gum foil. Figuring his dusting done, Danno was slipping into his kimono and just going to skin through the ropes when the old walrus bounced up and sneaked him a quick punch.

Well, Danno peeled down again and began throwing wallops as if he were showering a bridegroom with confetti. He sprinkled punches over everybody, including a couple of cops.

Presently, the Strangler sagged down as if he was melting at the knees and sprawled with his jowls overflowing the ring apron. And while he was lying there an innocent customer slipped out of his rubbers and, hoisting his coattails, kicked him very neatly on the features.

The scene ended with the floor crew gathering Strangler up by his head and heels and trundling him off swinging like a hammock and with a towel over his face.

It would seem now in asking for another helping that the Strangler is just an old pig for punishment, and it would serve him right if, after bagging him again, Danno had him stuffed and mounted in his trophy room for safe future keeping.

Farewell!

Holy Cross Ready to Say Good-Bye to Harvard

Holy Cross means business. Joe Murphy, tackle, is shown taking a shot at his teammate, Walter Janiak, a pretty classy ball toter. Tomorrow's game ends a long series between the Crusaders and the Crimson, and Holy Cross intends to make Harvard remember its farewell appearance.

(Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

Here's bad news for Dick Harlow and his Harvardians. Jim Hobin is ready, and that means trouble at the Stadium tomorrow. Hobin is one of the classiest backs in the East. He will be one of the spearheads in the Holy Cross attack tomorrow afternoon.

40,000 TO SEE PURPLE, CRIMSON

LATTER GIVEN LITTLE CHANCE

By Walter Kiley

There are no "ifs" and "buts" about the Harvard-Holy Cross game at the Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

First major test of the season for the hardy rivals, the Purple has been made the public's favorite in overwhelming manner.

On the eve of the game which is to attract Boston's first large crowd of the football season, estimated at some 40,000 or more, Holy Cross finds itself on the long end of 10-4 odds.

On a comparative record of the personnel of the two teams, the odds would seem entirely justified.

This despite the fact that the Crimson has time and again trumped Purple aces and beaten fine Worcester teams when the margin of pre-game superiority was equally large.

INJURED LIST

Dr. Eddie Anderson's Holy Cross team is veteran. Bob Mautner, 205 pound sophomore center, is the only exception.

Harvard, meeting its first stern test since Dick Harlow came up from the Fastnesses of Western Maryland in an attempt to bring order out of chaos, has been the victim of one unfortunate circumstance after another.

First it lost its field general, captain and punter in Bob Haley of Winthrop. Next was an injury to Tommy Biodeau, former Boston Latin all-around athlete who might have started tomorrow's game as quarterback.

Then was the crushing blow of losing Bunnie Lane and Tom Jackson, by far its most capable running threats, as the result of injuries sustained in the Springfield opener and another to Center Bobby Jones received in a week-day scrimmage.

Captain Shaun Kelly and Emile Dubiel, a pair of outstanding ends, are all that Harlow has of experienced men.

Sophomores will carry the burden of Harvard's load. Their ability to make the grade will tell the story of success or failure tomorrow and possibly for the balance of the year.

Despite the one-sided odds, Holy Cross players are far from taking the outcome lightly.

The game, the 20th between the two teams, in a series dating back to 1904, is also the last. And with past experiences of defeat resulting in carelessness and over confidence, neither Anderson nor his squad [illegible] advance.

STARTED IN '25

It took Holy Cross 20 years to gain its first victory, McMahon and Wallis combining for a 41-yard touchdown forward pass and then kicking the point after to win a 7-6 verdict in 1925.

In all the Crimson has won 15 games of the 19 played, the 1926 game resulting in a scoreless deadlock after the Crusaders had put on one of the grandest displays of defensive stubbornness in the history of the series. Twice Harvard had the ball on the Purple one-foot line. The Worcester clan held.

Anderson has found success against Harvard where his predecessors failed.

Charlie "Buzz" Harvey saved the day two years ago by a 20-yard placement which eventually won the game, 10-7.

Last season Jim Hobin, Nicky Morris, Rex Kidd and Vin Daugherty tossed passes all over the Stadium turf to win 26-6.

It is those same passes which will comprise the most formidable scoring weapon in the Holy Cross folder tomorrow. Hobin, Kidd, Morris, Dougherty are all back.

FOUR N. E. COLLEGES SNUB HANLEY'S TERRIERS

PREXY Defends STATUS

SUBSIDIZING NOT ALLOWED

Taking a firm and bold stand, President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University last night scored the evident attitude of several New England rivals in severing gridiron relations with Coach 'Pat' Hanley's Terrier eleven.

The attack was made during his annual message to the Boston University board of trustees, faculty and students at the Hotel Vendome last night.

The colleges referred to were Tufts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Bates, regular rivals of the Boston school, who have severed football relations.

"Some of the smaller institutions with which we have been playing inferred that they would no longer be able to match Boston University.

N. E. Colleges Out

"Boston University's schedule this year included contests with Toledo, Miami and Rutgers, because we could not schedule some of our former New England foes, Bates and Vermont specifically. Next year Tufts and New Hampshire will also be missing from the slate. In place of these teams we are compelled to seek elevens from the South and Middle West.

"Our new interest in athletics, particularly football, and the kindly attitude of sports writers toward Boston University, created the opinion that we were going in for 'big-time' football.

"This rumor was disquieting both to them and to us. But, if Boston University were willing to resort to recruiting and subsidization, our team would doubtlessly make a better showing than even our most enthusiastic friends would have any reason to expect.

Encourage Sports

"We do not believe in giving any subsidy of money or value to any student primarily for his athletic services. On the other hand, we do not believe in discriminating against a student because he is interested in athletic sports. The administration of Boston University is committed to the code of approval as formulated by the National Collegiate Athletic Association as stated in New York last December."

YALE Practices at PENN FIELD

By Associated Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 11—A Yale football team comes to Philadelphia today after an absence of 46 years.

The Bulldogs, leashed to Coach 'Ducky' Pond, were due to arrive in Philadelphia shortly after noon. They will work out at Franklin Field, where they will meet the University of Pennsylvania gridders tomorrow.

It will be the first time a Yale eleven touched foot within Penn's stadium.

In their last meeting here in 1889, the game was played on a field near the U. of P., where dormitories now stand.

Tomorrow's contest will be the 15th of a Penn-Yale rivalry that dates back to 1879.

In making known Penn's starting lineup, Coach Harvey Harman announced two definite changes. John Neill will replace Al Nye at right end and Gene Sweeney, a sophomore, will be at Eddie Warwick's right halfback position.

MARYLANDS' Great Squad

College Park, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—What coach could asked for a better prospect than the one Frank Dobson lined up for his Maryland squad as it tuned up for the North Carolina game? "They're 100 per cent physically and 200 per cent mentally," he said.

HARVARD CUBS To Meet Exeter

What appears to be the strongest Harvard freshman eleven in several years opens its season tomorrow afternoon against an Exeter team which defeated the Yale freshmen a week ago, 7-6.

The starting Harvard backfield is composed of Clarence Boston, Jr., of Pawtucket; Ulysses Lupien, brother of the former Harvard athlete; Philip Brooks and Francis Harding.

Another schoolboy prize playing for the Crimson freshmen is Donald Daughters, Watertown high end, brother of the Holy Cross wingman.

Red Rain Primed for Futurity

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 11—Despite his disappointing performance four days ago C. V. Whitney's Red Rain rallied plenty of support today as upwards of a score of two-year-olds were pointed for the $100,000 Futurity at Belmont Park tomorrow.

Although severely beaten in the Nursery Stakes, the big chestnut appeared more like the horse that came from behind to take the Hopeful at Saratoga when he reeled off five furlongs in 59 3-5 seconds yesterday.

He ran down the Widener straightaway over which the Futurity will be decided to six and-half furlongs.

With little Joe Wagner holding the reins, the son of Pennant stepped the first eighth of a mile in 114-5 seconds, the quarter in 22 4-5, three furlongs in 34 3-5 and the half in 46 3-5.

Alfred Robertson will be brought from New England to ride the Whitney ace. The lanky jockey was up on Red Rain in the colt's debut at Saratoga.

Sonny Workman will be up on Tatterdemalion, a Whitney colt which has failed to run to expectations.

Despite his impressive trial, Red Rain probably will not rule the favorite. The honor is expected to go to E. D. Shaffer's Coldstream, the big son of Bull Dog from Kentucky, which raced Red Rain to a dead heat in the Saratoga special and then took his measure in the Nursery.

ALLAN WILSON SEES ROSY RACING FUTURE

Mr. Boston Garden Offers Miller $10,000

By JACK CONWAY

THE BOSTON Garden is prepared to give Freddy Miller a guarantee of $10,000 and a 37½ per cent privilege if he will defend his title as world's featherweight champion against Vernon Cormier of Worcester.

The Garden won't agree to guarantee Miller a thin dime if he demands an overweight match. It insists that Miller take his chances of losing his featherweight crown against the sharp shooting Cormier.

Mr. Boston

I am in accord with the Garden on this matter. I think one of the reasons boxing suffered such a slump was because champions refused to risk their titles, and instead picked up easy money in overweight contests.

The weight for the featherweight has a 126 pounds. Miller is able to make this notch without any difficulty.

Cormier is also a legitimate featherweight. He would have little to gain by defeating Miller in an overweight contest.

Champions also usually dodge a boxer who gives them a decisive defeat in an overweight contest. If Cormier is well advised, and should he with Al Lippe acting as his manager, he won't sign to battle Miller unless the latter risks his featherweight crown.

Pete Reilly, Miller's manager, was to hold another conference with Matchmaker Ray Cass of the Garden today. Al Lippe, Cormier's manager, was also expected to come here.

This meeting should result in a showdown.

I would like to see Miller battle Cormier here, but I want it to be staged as a championship contest, and not as a get-the-money overweight affair.

RING CLASS

MILLER is the best champion in featherweight division has had since the colorful Johnny Dundee utscored Jaggers Criqui over the 15 rd oute.

Miller has an amazing amount boxing class. He has mastered roper use of the left hand, r he punches very fast with his right.

The title holder has been more active than all the other champions put together. In a single year he engaged in 32 bouts. Most of them were staged in Europe. These bouts netted Miller $125,000.

Miller knows how to hit properly, which is why he has never suffered a serious injury to his hands.

Jimmy Walsh, rated as one of the world's leading bantamweights some years back once told me the reason most boxers injure their hands is because they don't know how to punch properly.

Max Baer has had a great many difficulties with his hands because he throws wild, looping punches. If a boxer hits with his knuckles, he seldom meets with a mishap.

Cormier is also a champion. The Worcester boxer recently returned from a tour of the world. He gave away weight and won the Australian lightweight championship. Now he is confident he can win from Miller if given the opportunity in a title bout.

$25,000 RACE

COUNT ARTHUR is being pointed for the $25,000 added Massachusetts Handicap which will be staged at Suffolk Downs on next Wednesday.

Discovery will be the betting choice, but the wonder horse is certain to receive plenty of opposition. In addition to Count Arthur, Discovery will have to step to defeat Top Row, Time Supply, Stand Pat, Only One and Good Goods.

A. A. Baroni is so anxious to win with Top Row that he has withdrawn this thoroughbred from the $10,000 stake race which is to take place at Agawam tomorrow. He felt that the trip from Suffolk to Agawam and return might cause Top Row to get off racing edge.

Baroni takes a great deal of personal pride in the fact Top Row defeated Discovery in the Narragansett Special, and is anxious to prove that the victory was no fluke.

Top Row will be obliged to carry more weight next Wednesday than it did in the Narragansett Special. It had an impost of 110 pounds in the Narragansett race, and will probably carry five to six pounds more in the race here.

Discovery carried 139 pounds at Narragansett, and it is not expected that it will carry any less weight in the Massachusetts Handicap in view of its easy victory at Chicago last Saturday.

Smith Alarmist, He Intimates

Cooperation Needed

SUFFOLK DOES WELL IN FALL MEETING

By Ann Marsters

Here we have the racing gentlemen living in a house divided. And the partition that separates them is made up of the question, "Is New England racing doomed?"

On one side is the "'tisn't" school of thought and on the other lives the "'tis" camp.

Lou Smith of the Rockingham and Agawam race tracks has vociferously shouted that racing IS doomed—because of too much racing and too much betting.

Walter O'Hara has bombastically hit back by saying it ISN'T—and he added that Mr. Smith came to that conclusion only when his new Agawam track proved a failure.

Now Allan Wilson, general manager of Suffolk Downs, enters the scene—but not nearly as bombastically as O'Hara and Smith.

$2,500,000

Mr. Wilson doesn't like controversy, so he was wise and mild in his statements. And he wouldn't wholeheartedly agree with either O'Hara or Smith. But he did blend his voice with one of O'Hara's cries.

"New England racing is NOT doomed."

Wilson believes there is a brilliant future for racing in Massachusetts—provided the turf game is conducted properly.

"I believe," he said, "that racing will continue to flourish in Massachusetts if everybody connected with the game gives it their sincere support."

Certainly there is no lack of confidence being shown by the Suffolk Downs individuals. They have invested $2,500,000 in the track.

"And we consider it," said Wilson, "the finest racing plant in America.

"Our summer meeting proved very successful. Most important of all, we furnished the public with splendid racing.

"Contrary to what Mr. Smith has said, the present fall meeting has also been a success, both from the standpoint of racing and attendance."

It's nice to talk with a race track official who is really interested in the horses themselves and who still believes that the spirit of sportsmanship enters into racing. Mr Wilson is one of them.

"We are particularly anxious," he said, "to have people in Massachusetts become directly interested in the racing of horses.

"We believe that with more local people racing horses on Massachusetts tracks, there will be a greater spirit of competition, and that racing will benefit from it."

HORSE LOVERS

That was fine encouragement to the business or professional man who might like to own a race horse or two, but who wonders whether or not he'd have chance competing with owners of large stables. Mr Wilson says he most certainly has

"And I do not know of any more healthy place for a person to go on a good day than to a race track. You get fresh air and sunshine, and a lot of mental relaxation from watching the races.

"I am glad to notice that as people get better versed in racing knowledge, they are more interested in the thoroughbreds themselves than they are in the betting connected with the races.

"When the great Discovery raced at Suffolk Downs last summer, thousands of persons made their first visit to a race track in America. They wanted to see Discovery in the paddock as well as in action on the track.

"I believe you will have that same interest when Discovery races against Top Row, Stand Pat and a field of other great thoroughbreds in our $25,000 Massachusetts Handicap next Wednesday."

So Allan Wilson believes there is no decline in racing interest in New England.

"It is my opinion," he said, "that racing will grow in public interest and that Suffolk Downs will continue to prosper."

That appears to vindicate Mr Smith into the class of a mere alarmist and to exonerate Mr O'Hara gently for getting so burned up about Smith's statements.

Wilson remains calm and confident.

SOMERVILLE AT MEDFORD

By Will Connell

Two unbeaten teams face hazardous afternoons at home tomorrow, when Medford entertains Somerville and Haverhill visits Lynn Classical in the headlined school games of the holiday.

Medford has been tied. Classical has won each game, but either or both may skid.

Last Saturday Medford turned in a brilliant performance to beat powerful Brockton by a point. Tomorrow it has tradition as well as football skill to back it against Somerville, which hasn't beaten Medford in a couple of decades.

Walter Carew has developed amazingly into a top flight pilot for Medford. He in the backfield and Captain Fred Packham at end provide line and backfield sparkle and help give Medford its very slim edge.

Somerville's chances rest largely on the condition of Quarterback Frank Zarmenarchi, who has been injury-benched.

Lynn Classical, one of Bill Joyce's best productions, has a terrific assignment. Haverhill very nearly topped Malden last week, showing both attack and defensive ability. If it is in top form it may knock Classical from the title-hunting group.

Everett, unbeaten and untied isn't worrying at all as it goes to Newton, yet here is a chance for a tipover. Newton with weight, speed and experience in its favor, tripped Arlington and Cambridge Latin big last week folded up against Lynn English.

On man power Newton is one of the best, with Ernie Savignano piloting a seasoned team. If it happens to be in the mood, it can beat almost any school.

Thus, while Everett has an apparent three touchdown edge, it may have trouble coming near that mark.

Malden expects to beat invading Melrose. The latter is better than for several years and no setup for its host. Both are unbeaten and untied, strong on attack and defense. Malden's reserve margin will decide the outcome.

Arlington travels to Fitchburg for a very close affair. With Bart Madden back in condition Arlington appears likely to win by a small score.

Waltham, unbeaten and untied, should have no trouble at Revere where it meets a light, inexperienced team. Salem plays host to Newburyport, which hasn't enough to ground the Witches.

Cambridge Latin and Rindge stage their annual intracity war at Russell Field in the morning. Cambridge will win unless the Rindge line shows improvement. Rindge backs are able, but unseasoned linemen have prevented the ball carriers from doing much.

LADY CHARMIAN SUFFOLK'S BEST

Biography Rated Tops in Feature

By Dave Wilson
BEST BET—LADY CHARMIAN

Suffolk Downs, Oct. 11—Biography, clever plater from the Canadian stable of E. F. Seagram, tops a field of 11 evenly matched middle-distance runners in the one mile and 70 yards of the $3000 added the Columbus Day Claiming Stakes.

Rivaling the feature event in interest will be the six furlongs of the Santa Maria purse. This race carries $3000 in added money and has attracted a field of nine fleet juveniles, including Percy M. Pike's good filly, Little Nymph.

Lady Charmian shapes up as the most outstanding wager on the entire card

FIRST RACE—LADY CHARMIAN, SIGHTING BAR, TWO EDGED
FIRST RACE—Claiming, $1000, two-year-olds, six furlongs.

PP	Horse	Wt.	Jockey	P. Odds	Comment
8	Lady Charmian	105	Turk	7-5	Has her on card
6	Sighting Bar	115	Howell	6	The right dropper
4	Two Edged	3102	W. Bay	10-1	Chance on western race
10	Wonderment	103	Fiddler	7-1	Nightmare better
3	Drawn Sword	107	Robertson	8-1	May be "good thing"
7	Peaceful	3107	Stevenson	6-1	Rates some chance
9	Over Yonder	3110	J. Stanford	10-1	Must last moving up
11	Mr. Duty	107	Luther	15-1	Usually fast to end
2	Roscrill	117	Lindberg	4-1	Raced well in stretch
1	Dr. Tremock	102	Masters	50-1	Improvement needed
12	Take Walk	107	Hooper	50-1	Stranger
5	Eddie's Brother	107	Mills	20-1	Outclassed

LADY CHARMIAN, nosed out by SIGHTING BAR last trip, should reverse the tables on her nearest rival under the weight arrangements in this affair. SIGHTING BAR is taking on seven pounds while LADY CHARMIAN drops six making a thirteen pound shift in favor of the Baroni colorbearer. TWO EDGED raced fairly well in the west and appears the best of the others.

SECOND—CHIEF MOURNER, FANFERN, MR. PETE
SECOND RACE—Claiming, $1000, three-year-olds and up, one mile

4	Chief Mourner	3101	Ray	5-1
6	Fanfern	3107	Stevenson	4-1
8	Mr. Pete	3107	Hanford	6-1
1	Center Lane	110	Hooper	8-1
5	Note Boy	3105	Perrin	6-1
2	Knave	112	Lindberg	8-1

CHIEF MOURNER strikes me as the class in this $2500 top and bottom affair. This plater performed in creditable fashion against $3500 company at the recent Lincoln Fields session. The route will suit him nicely. FANFARE was a "red-hot" favorite last time out at Agawam and placed to Mickey's Man. She shapes up next best on the strength of that performance. MR. PETE is always a handy sort in this company, and must be accorded at least a fighting chance.

THIRD—HOLMER L., ACATAW, MOANE KEALA.
THIRD RACE—Claiming, $1000, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

8	Honor J.	3111	Stevenson	6-1
11	Acataw	3111	Perrin	8-1
3	Moane Keala	3102	Hooper	6-1
6	Holmer L.	3101	Stevenson	8-5
10	Harry	3111	Hanford	8-1
7	Sherbrend Boy	111	Malley	8-1
5	Jack Huckleberry	3107	Gumarl	8-1
12	Blushing Thru	3111	Ray	8-1
9	Contention	111	Turk	20-1
1	Melee	111	Lindberg	20-1
4	Xenone	107	Howell	20-1
2	Poison Cup	101	Lindley	20-1

HOLMER L., a trifle too ambitiously placed in recent Agawam races, appears beautifully spotted in this $1750 top and $1500 bottom affair. He needs only a smooth ride in order to cash his bugle. ACATAW, freshened up since Rockingham, has worked swiftly for this race and should furnish the contention. Mud will move him up. MOANE KEALA is in under a feather of 102 pounds, and figures to be in the thick of contention this way weighted.

FOURTH RACE—TIME FLIGHT, AJACCIO, CHINESE EMPRESS
FOURTH RACE—The Boston Post Handicap, three-year-olds and up, $1200, six furlongs.

8	aTime Flight	105	Maiora	7-5
5	Ajaccio	107	Howell	3-1
1	Chinese Empress	103	Stevenson	6-1
6	Royal Blueprint	115	Ray	8-1
4	Chance Line	108	Malley	8-1

a—P. M. Pike entry.

...TIME FLIGHT, second to Some Pomp in the Pilgrim Handicap last Saturday, ran as if much the best horse in that day. The blue colorbearer, usually a gun from the barrier, was literally knocked out of contention at the break, but he closed in game fashion to be beaten by the shortest of margins right on the wire. I dont see how he can hardly miss with an even shake in racing luck. AJACCIO paraded postwards a "red-hot" favorite in the Pilgrim, but he could do no better than finish a poor third. He will have to show improvement in order to handle the top one. CHINESE EMPRESS hardly classes with the top pair, but she has a slight edge on the others

FIFTH RACE—LITTLE NYMPH, TINKLING BROOK, BARNSLEY
FIFTH RACE—Claiming, $3000 added, two-year-olds, six furlongs, The Santa Maria.

8	Little Nymph	3107	Gumarl	7-1
3	Tinkling Brook	109	Malley	2-1
1	Chantley	3113	J. Stanford	8-1
5	Shillyshock	3101	Stevenson	4-1
9	Pilfer	107	Short	8-1
10	Toby Tyler	3111	Hanford	12-1
6	Dixie Bob	3101	Ray	4-1
7	Swithersea	105	Haines	2-1
4	Supreme Maiden	107	Hooper	50-1

Just can't go past LITTLE NYMPH in searching for the winner here. This speedy miss is right at the peak of her form, as may be attested by her easy victory of only a few days back. In front of that she turned in a bang-up performance in the Constitution Handicap. She is favorably burdened under 107 pounds and TINKLING BROOK holds plenty of class and is strictly the one to fear. BARNSLEY was the runner-up to the top one last time out.

SIXTH—BIOGRAPHY, THOMASVILLE, ONRUSH
SIXTH RACE—Claiming, $3000 added, three-year-olds and up, one mile and 70 yards, The Columbus Day Claiming Stakes.

2	Biography	118	Lindberg	8-1
8	Thomasville	3117	J. Stanford	3-1
6	Onrush	116	Mallory	8-1
10	Cantine Last	119	Howell	5-1
7	Fair Helen	113	Ray	8-1
4	Golden Message	118	Hooper	8-1
5	Trend	3107	Stevenson	8-1
3	Crystal Spruce	117	Wall	15-1
11	Alert Up	115	Hooper	8-1
1	Gavin	115	Helm	15-1

a—F. P. Morgan entry.

This is one of the most wide open races ever offered in this section. BIOGRAPHY is my choice. The Seagram colorbearer did not do so badly last time considering that he was giving away tons of weight. Previous dope discloses that he has produced similar fields in the past. THOMASVILLE was shipped here from Agawam in the pink of condition. He is the one to fear on all form. ONRUSH turned in a dull performance last time out. In front of that he was a corking second to Beefsteak. He merits serious consideration on that effort. The others are not outmatched

SEVENTH—OUR ADMIRAL, HIGHEST POINT, LITTLE LAD
SEVENTH RACE—Claiming, $1000, three-year-olds and up, mile and 20 yards.

1	Our Admiral	118	Helm	7-5
2	Highest Point	3110	Hanford	8-5
4	Little Lad	116	Howell	8-1
5	Admatic	114	Mallory	8-1
3	Tom Rich	113	Stevenson	8-1

OUR ADMIRAL and HIGHEST POINT figure pretty much alike here, but I'm tempting fate by rating them as named. The Whitehill colorbearer is familiar with the track and turned in a bang-up second to Herkimer last time out. HIGHEST POINT has been freshened up since the recent Rockingham and has done his training at Agawam. He worked well for this race. LITTLE LAD will be dangerous only in the event of mud. He is a five-star [illegible]

EIGHTH—RAMGOWER, BIG GAWK, ANACREON
EIGHTH RACE—Claiming, $1000, three-year-olds and up, 1¼ miles.

6	Ramgower	3107	Stevenson	8-5
7	Big Gawk	106	Helms	3-1
2	Anacreon	3101	Perrin	4-1
5	Hesperia	3101	Ray	6-1
8	Thatch	107	Mallory	8-1
3	Tomfoolery	3107	Hanford	6-1
1	Omurreen	108	Maiora	15-1
4	Goose Creek	108	Gray	20-1

Post time 1:30 p. m. Track fast; weather clear

The mile and one-quarter route should be right down RAMGOWER'S alley. This plater can run as far as they make horse races. He is coming off a pair of corking two-mile and 70-yard victories at Detroit. He did his training at Agawam and shipped here on razor edge. BIG GAWK, third to Fast Move at one-mile and a sixteenth, clicked a world of ground that day. The increased route should suit him nicely. ANACREON is clearly the speed of the party, but I have doubts as to her staying ability.

NEW ARMY STAR ON HORIZON

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 11—The Marquette football team is thick with relatives . . . Most unusual is the uncle-nephew combination of Gene Belonga and Lloyd Tappa, a pair of sophomore linesmen.

Then there are the Guepe twins—Art and Al—both backfield stars . . . John and Wallace Lauterbach are cousins . . . And Guard Bill Jennings is the son of the athletic director . . . No, Ray Sonnenberg, halfback, is no kin to Gus, the wrestler.

Mike Jacobs is relaxing in Bermuda for a few days . . . apparently he has a sentimental weakness for visiting the Empire of old . . . Tommy Cutrone of Yale, who defeated Bruce Caldwell and Albie Booth, has shifted to No. 11.

Army Star

Army won't have to live in the past for football greats for long . . . unless a lot of experts are wrong, Big Jim Craig, an ironjawed sophomore, is going to make the Cadets forget (well, almost forget) about Jack Buckler, Chris Cagle, etc . . .

Craig was barely good enough to make the plebe squad last year and to hold a place on the fourth team early this season.

Murray Patrick, 20-year-old son of the Rangers' manager, is having a hard time choosing between hockey and boxing for his professional efforts . . . There's a hockey job waiting with the Rangers . . . and he's amateur lightweight champ of Canada . . . Besides that, he's a basketball star and has done some bike racing.

It will be brother against brother when Moravian College meets Susquehenna September 26 . . . Moravian is coached by Paul Stagg; Susquehanna by Alonzo Stagg, Jr . . . Both are sons of grand old James Alonzo Stagg, whose little college of the Pacific team probably will be scaring the wits out of some big eleven on the Pacific Coast the same day

Ed Danowski, former Fordham star, will essay a new role when he calls the signals for the New York pro Giants against Brooklyn Sunday . . . Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina made Wilburn Clary a colonel for scoring the season's first touchdown against Erskine

CANZONERI GETS RUNYON BOUQUET

TONY NAMED REAL CHAMP

By Damon Runyon

New York, Oct. 11—One of the most remarkable figures of ring history is still active at this time—not only active, but a champion of the world.

Years from now, when the discussion turns to great fighters, this generation which will then be in the I-remember stage, can bring up the name of Tony Canzoneri and rightfully mumble:

"Boys, there was a fighter!"

It will be when he has long since passed from the stage of fistic events that little Tony will get full credit. He is too close to us now for us to fully realize all he is, and has been, but we make bold to say that the day will come when he will be rated among the all time great of the ring.

It is seldom that a fighter in his fighting prime gets all that is coming to him in the way of credit. Joe Louis is one of the first in years to receive immediate recognition as an exceptional gladiator. Most of the others have to wait for history to prove it.

Great Record

You have to marvel when you consider Tony Canzoneri's record. It is something truly remarkable

He is lightweight champion of the world at the present time and just successfully defended that title. He has held it twice. He is former featherweight champion of the world and was once accorded the now passe title of junior welterweight champion.

He has been going [illegible] He has been contending [illegible] more difficult boxing opponents than any fighter in history. Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Mickey Walker, Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera, Max Baer and Jimmy Braddock. He has seen the rise and fall of hundreds of great fighters since he started out in 1925. And he remains a champion of champions . . . for most of his great contemporaries of the ring are gone.

believe the story, that he started so young his manager raised his age for publication for fear the boxing commission wouldn't let him fight.

Canzoneri, a Babe Ruth in miniature in appearance, doesn't look 30. He isn't greatly marked up, though he has had upwards of 150 battles.

He may not be as great a lightweight champion as some of the old-timers, like Joe Gans, Kid Lavigne or Benny Leonard, but he is the wonder of this day and age in that prize ring. The only fighter of recent years comparable to him was Johnny Dundee. In our opinion, one of the greatest of the great. Canzoneri is one of the most interesting figure in the fistic game today.

LEAGUERS WIN Mexican Opener

Mexico, D. F., Oct. 11—Earl Mack's American League baseball tourists opened their Mexican stand by sweeping a team selected from leading players of local amateur clubs, 6 to 1.

The Mexicanos made nine hits off Ted Lyons but were able to bunch them only in the sixth when two singles and Lyons' bad throw to first gave them their only run

Ralph (Red) Kress, Washington's all-around player, made four of the major leaguer's 13 hits and drove in three runs

Eagles Visit Stadium

The 45 members of the Boston College football squad will witness the Harvard-Holy Cross struggle in the Stadium tomorrow as the guests of the Crimson athletic authorities.

This will afford the Eagle players their lone opportunity to observe the Crusaders in action until they meet them on Alumni Field, November 30.

The Eagle coaches will not be present, however. "Dinny Mac" will be scouting Michigan State, Harry Downes, Western Maryland, and Bill Ormsby, New Hampshire.

GALLA Wins Opener AT DOWNS

By Ed Cogswell

Suffolk Downs, Oct. 11—With the Great Waltz the feature event of today's card an unusually large attendance of racing fans was on hand when Starter Roy Dickerson sent away the seven juveniles listed in the initial race.

Jockey Glen Haines was away in a good position with Galla, being only a neck back of Lottafun till the turn for home, when Lottafun quit. Registerite finished very fast to connect with the show money.

The touted good things in the second race, Venetian and Walda, were tripped over right at the very start. Jockey Turk hustled Good Jest, a 5 to 1 shot, off to the front, and never was in danger afterward. Venetian raced wide around the upper turn, and came a length back of the second to finish. Walda was the same distance back for third place.

BARABAS Practices Kicks

New York (AP)—It won't happen again if Lou Little can help it. Columbia scored twice against V. M. I. last week, and Al Barabas missed both tries for the extra points. With tougher games in prospect, Coach Little had Al out for an interesting drill in place-kicking yesterday with the freshman team trying to keep him from making the points.

DANNO, STRANGLER PUNCH IT OUT TONIGHT

THE HEADLOCK THAT FAILED; DANNO ABU!

Irishman Favorite

'RUBBER' BOUT BETWEEN MAT BEHEMOTHS

By Jack Conway

Dan O'Mahoney is a 10 to 9 favorite to retain his title as world's heavyweight wrestling champion against Strangler Lewis at a Paul Bowser show at the Garden tonight.

The youthful Irishman will rely upon his aggressiveness and power to beat down the former title holder.

O'Mahoney and Lewis have already met twice. The Strangler won the first contest which was staged in London, while Danno left the ring a victor in the second skirmish which took place at the Garden.

O'Mahoney and Lewis are expected to furnish a torrid bout tonight. It is certain to be replete with boxing as well as wrestling

BOXING LESSONS

In the last meeting between these big fellows, O'Mahoney resorted to punching tactics. He spit Lewis over the eye, on the left cheek and lower lip as he scored with smashing right hand blows.

Since then Lewis has taken a few lessons in boxing from Jack Dempsey and is of the opinion he will be able to hold his own in the event. O'Mahoney starts to do a Joe Louis tonight.

Sam Smith will referee tonight's skirmish. Smith was the third man in the ring the last time Danno and Lewis met.

In a free-for-all mixup after the final gong, Smith got in the way of one of Danno's punches and received a severe gash over his left eye.

The ring was filled with police as O'Mahoney tried to avenge a punch he received from Lewis after the contest ended.

Lewis will have a weight advantage tonight. He will scale 250 pounds against 225 for O'Mahoney.

BENEFIT SHOW

The preliminary card bristles with action with Emil Dusek clashing against Count Zarynoff in the semi-final.

Other bouts include Jim Browning vs. Bibber McCoy, Leo Numa vs. Billy Bartush, Danny Winters vs. Red Odell, John Spellman vs. Red Ryan, and Chief Little Moose vs. Charley Strack

The show is for the benefit of the Knights of St. Finbar, Corkmen's Association.

MAIN EVENT
(Two falls in three. For world title.)

SEMIFINAL

PRELIMINARIES

Jim Browning, Verona, Mo., vs. Bibber McCoy, Holy Cross.

Leo Numa, Washington, vs. Billy Bartush, Chicago.

John Spellman, Brown, vs. Red Ryan, Philadelphia.

Chief Little Moose, Oklahoma, vs. Charley Strack, Oklahoma.

Boxing Results

Newark—Freddie Fidgeis, 187, Newark, and Tony Celli, 176½, Worcester, fought to six round draw. At Reno, Nev., Port Chester, N. Y., defeated Gene Dundee, 160½, Reno, ten rounds.

At Reno, Conn.—Rod Nicknair, Brooklyn, N. Y., scored technical knockout over Red Finnegan, Utica, N. Y., 186, in seventh round. Finnegan broke thumb. Steve Carr, Meriden, 187, took eight round decision from Leo Salvas, 168, Chicopee Falls, Mass.

GOLDEN GLOVE TRIALS AT ARENA

Amateur boxers from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island will compete in the third Golden Gloves tryout tournament at the Boston Arena tonight. The finals are to be held October 24.

Fans will watch with interest the performance of Peter Dezozowski of South Boston, formerly of Gardner, who lost a questionable decision to Jimmy McCarron of Somerville at last week's tournament.

Other boys competing tonight in the 135-pound class are Joe Lombardi, East Boston; Mike Kaplan, Roxbury; Harold Sullivan, Fall River; Clifford Stephenson, Warren, R. I.; Stanley Wenock, Dorchester; Arthur Pelley, Suncook, N. H.; Jimmy Synott, Fall River; Eddie Bangs, East Cambridge.

'Light heavies' entered are Elmo Broeri, Bradford; George David, Roxbury; John Burns, Boston, and Leslie Menzels of Suncook, N. H.

Joe Nolan, the Newton boy, now a student at University of New Hampshire, will be on hand for the 126 pounds

HARDWICK SEES HARVARD DEFEAT

By H. R. Hardwick
All-time, All-America End at Harvard

Tomorrow Harvard meets Holy Cross in the Stadium in the last game scheduled between these rivals for an indefinite period.

On spasmodic occasions prior to 1920 and yearly since that time, these teams have met. The net results have been 13 victories for Harvard, five victories for Holy Cross and one tie score.

In this series the keen rivalry evidenced and the fine feeling engendered have been mutual, and graduates of both institutions look forward with sincere anticipation to an eventual resumption.

This season Holy Cross appears to hold a very distinct advantage. It is operating at top speed under a well-established coaching system, ably administered by Coach Dr. Anderson.

It is favored with an exceptional squad of potentially brilliant and experienced material. It entertains the hope of sectional honors, which hops last season, after a brilliant start, slipped from its grasp. These factors bode ill for John Harvard

Harvard, on the other hand, is installing a system radically different from that of previous seasons with the result that much of the former training becomes a liability rather than an asset.

The necessity of painstakingly slow progress during this installation of the Harlow system affords an unquestioned handicap in such an early season game.

These factors, together with an outbreak of injuries among the more experienced backfield candidates, would appear to make Harvard's chances of victory relatively slim.

Last year Holy Cross recorded a sound drubbing to the Crimson. A certain Mr. Hobin played a most conspicuous role. Said Mr. Hobin is still at Holy Cross, although he appears in the advance lineup as a substitute.

His brilliance against Harvard last season may possibly have been a flash in the pan—a possibility which seems to me remote. Real ability was too painfully evident.

Many teams would welcome such natural ability with open arms, and the very fact that Hobin is not an announced regular is potent proof of the wealth of material at Coach Anderson's disposal.

As regards Holy Cross' large score last year, most of it occurred via forward pass in which department Harvard was a weak defensive as Holy Cross was strong offensively.

It is extremely doubtful that the Crusaders can utilize their attack with anything like nothing last year's success as such is the alert defense that Coach Harlow is stressing at Cambridge.

What the Holy Cross powerhouse plays can accomplish is just a hope last season, after a brilliant start, slipped from its grasp. These factors bode ill for John Harvard

The Crusaders have in Rex Kidd a smart quarterback, better than average running backs, Captain Nick Morris and Yablonsky, and a truly stalwart and aggressive line with Hip Monsewicz outstanding.

Not only is the whole team studded with excellent material but it is blessed with a set of replacements of varsity calibre.

MEPHISTO To Meet Germaine AT MECHANICS

Mephisto, light heavyweight mat gladiator, will meet Ted Germaine of South Boston in the feature wrestling bout at Mechanics building next Tuesday night.

Mephisto returns to the Hub with the determination to win the crown from Wilna Jordan.

Mephisto pointed out that he has already pinned Robbins to the mat, and is confident he can turn the trick again

FLEET LION BACKS To Show at Fenway Park Sunday

By MURRAY KRAMER

There are just two reasons why Gyp Battles is not the leading ground gainer in the pro league—and both of them will appear at Fenway Park Sunday.

The reasons are a pair of gents who answer to the names of Dutch Clark and Ernie Caddell. Both represent the Detroit Lions, a team that bid fair to cause our Redskins plenty of grief Sunday.

Caddell leads the league in ground gaining with an average of 8.9 yards for every time he has lugged the leather. Clark is the runnerup, with Battles in third place.

In addition to Bad News Caddell and Worse News Clark, there is another menace in the visitors' backfield known as Glenn Presnell. Glenn happens to possess one of those educated toes, and he has a distressing habit of hooting successful placements with monotonous regularity.

This trio together with LeRoy (don't let the name mislead you) Gutowski, round out as a nifty backfield as any coach would want.

Given a dry field Sunday, this backfield will probably have the Redskins on the run a great deal of the time with a tricky assortment of passes, forward and lateral. It was a soggy field that hurt them so in Brooklyn last Sunday.

On paper Detroit should win, but rumor has it that the Redskins do not read the papers

Both squads are in great shape except for Jim Musick of the Redskins.

PRIZE Play Got Off To Poor Start

By GEORGE HOLLAND

The awarding of the Pulitzer prize to "The Old Maid," the Zoe Akins-Edith Wharton work that comes to the Plymouth Theater Monday night, has certain elements of poetic justice to be found in Cinderella's slipper attached to it.

George Holland

In a season that has seen the courage of a Theresa Helburn and a Lawrence Langner in the production of "Porgy" and the boldness of the Theatre Guild in the production of "The Old Maid" and the presentation of Clifford Odets' "Waiting for Lefty" and "Till the Day I Die," the critical gods, Mr. Moses, who had been benefitted hugely when critics and a first-night audience were unanimous in praise of his "Grand Hotel," felt hurt by its reception, but (perhaps remembering the good fortune he had had with "Grand Hotel") he was by no means at

As evidence of the great faith in "The Old Maid" he had engaged two fine actresses, Judith Anderson and Helen Menken, for the starring roles and had given it one of the most beautiful productions.

Mr. Moses was not dismayed utterly by the plays fiasco start after its lukewarm reception. He determined to gamble on his judgment. For three weeks he calmly took his losses and then suddenly the play found its audience. At the Wednesday matinee performance of the fourth week of the New York engagement there were standees at the historic old Empire Theater. The establishment of the play as a success was one of the most talked of phenomena of the season.

Weeks later—after "The Old Maid" was an undisputed but became the Pulitzer award. The odds in the advance guessing on the Pulitzer prize winner favored another play, "The Children's Hour."

When the booty went instead to "The Old Maid" there was quite a little puff-paw along Broadway. Mr. Moses explained: He framed his words to the business of playing a hard-to-profitable property. "The Old Maid" first played a New York run two weeks ago and drew only 300 standees on the Wednesday matinee performance I mentioned.

Now the play goes to Boston on the first leg of a 12,000-mile tour that will take it from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico. Eighty-five of the 48 states will be played in the next year and the management says when that journey ends Raymond, Va., will be the only town of the greatest tour of the past decade—the great trek of "The Green Pastures." The company will travel 12,000 miles in 39 stops.

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

So far as I can hear, nobody seems to be taking very seriously the reported plans of the younger intellectuals at Harvard to join the American Federation of Labor and to go in for union politics as an offset to the capitalistic tyranny of the Corporation and Overseers of the College.

Robert E. Rogers

The results might be perfectly innocuous. Indeed, very probably they would be innocuous. When the American Association of University Professors was founded twenty years ago, a good many people called it professors' union and deplored the possibilities resulting from such a daring organization.

The liberals who were behind it undoubtedly looked forward to a situation in which the Association should become so powerful that that age-old dream of universities actually governed by their faculties, as in England and France, instead of by self-perpetuating trustees, should become a reality.

Nothing of the sort, of course has happened. The A. A. U. P. has done nothing in the way of changing the method of control of our colleges. About all that it has done of any significance had been to put the relation of trustee to faculty member upon something more like a contractual basis than the old one-sided relationship.

There is no doubt that tenure is more secure in colleges and universities than it was when the association began working on college presidents and boards of trustees, who considered it their divine right to discharge professors and instructors without proper notice and without valid reasons.

Even if only because the association has been able to make an intolerable nuisance of itself to such presidents and trustees, by holding investigations, instigating hearings, and generally upsetting the institution, a teacher's tenure is more clearly defined and more respected than it was 20 years ago.

Beyond that the college faculty remains about as impotent as ever in matters of policy.

I take it that the suggested Harvard professors' union is really more like a union.

Like those misguided New York public school teachers who joined the A. F. of L. only to find themselves soon swamped by a rapidly growing minority control of Communists, these Harvard historians, experts in government and economics, believe that they will be better teachers if they ally themselves with the labor movement and bring the practices and policies of organized labor into the academic organization.

Anyone who knows anything about such practices and politics will be exceedingly dubious. That most deadening of union policies the standard wage, regardless of the individual's ability, loyalty and enterprise, would hardly work in a college where one man may be a genius, another a great attraction of students, and a third an industrious but mediocre wheel-horse.

Or possibly the new labor professors will want to insist on the apprenticeship system and the rigid limitations of apprentices. Perhaps they will insist that only unionized teachers will be admitted to the teaching staff, or promoted, or allowed to publish.

Possibly they would like to see the union label on all publications of the college. Instead of burning the midnight oil well into the night, they might insist on a strict eight-hour day, with time and a half for all paper correcting or new reading done after 5 o'clock.

Beautiful Dream

If the union professors in economics discover that the union professors in sociology are horning in on economics, in disregard of the rules differentiating the crafts, will they not be likely to call a sympathetic strike of the historians and civics men, the dormitory janitors, the electricians and steam fitters and other members of the University Central Labor Union, all working together for the cause of liberal culture, higher wages and the closed shop?

Alas! It is only a beautiful dream I can think of no place more likely to greet a professor's union with a deadly and chill indifference than Harvard.

I can think of no corporation less likely to encourage such activities, or no president less likely to stand any nonsense of the sort than James Leigh or be fired! Cousin!

Of course the new Student Union in process of being amalgamated from the National Student League and the Student League for Industrial Democracy, will be highly pleased to admit the unionized professors to their frequent exhibitions of aimless rowdyness.

But something tells me that one of these days such students and such professors alike will be allowed to go peaceably off by themselves and found a college of their own, where capitalism, bolshevism and history can be taught without grovelling to the Constitution. At least, I hope so.

Dolores Costello Plans Screen Comeback

Los Angeles, Oct. 11—Dolores Costello not only won her freedom from the Don Juan of the screen, John Barrymore, in ten minutes, but she won something much more important. She received with that divorce the right to follow her career as an actress on the screen.

Dolores has had many offers but from a reliable source I learn that she is signing a contract with David O. Selznick to appear in United Artists pictures.

Louella O. Parsons

The former Mrs. Barrymore made a test of a scene from "Peter Ibbetson," carefully coached by her friend, Constance Collier, who played in the same scene on the stage. The test was so good that David Selznick became interested.

Al Lichtman's resignation as president of United Artists was accepted, Mary Pickford, as vice-president, automatically becomes president and will continue to act as head of the company until a successor to Mr. Lichtman is chosen.

The United Artists group made it clear that it was not a personal fight between Mr. Goldwyn and Mr. Lichtman that brought about the severance of relations, Mr Goldwyn was instructed to act as spokesman for Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Alexander Korda.

According to inside information the fight centered around certain rights that Lichtman felt he ought to have and the owner-members were unwilling to grant them.

Thelma Todd may not know it but I have received several letters saying that she should have been cast for Lillian Russell in "Diamond Jim Brady"—that she was much more the type than Binnie Barnes. Thelma is to play the part of the ivory maid in "The Bohemian Girl," which Hal Roach is producing at the Roach studios.

Phile Vance goes romantic in the newest S. S. Van Dine mystery, "The Garden Murder Case" just purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and now that Phile will have a love interest, Lucien Hubbard and Ned Marin are on a still hunt to find a permanent hero.

William Powell Warren William and Paul Lukas have all been Phile Vance at some stage in the game but the new Phile will be the one of these but in Mr. Hubbard Herbert Marshall, if he can be borrowed from Paramount.

GLITTERING GIRL

By May Christie

SYNOPSIS

Having struck oil, the quaint Jake Tysons leave their Texas home to introduce their lovely daughter, Vernon (called "Maggie" back home), to New York society with the aid of their socially prominent, though impoverished, cousins, the Rushingtons.

Sadie Tyson hopes for a brilliant match for her daughter, but Vernon's thoughts are with Terry Shannon, a young engineer she met on the train. Nan Rushington—Vernon's 18-year-old, ultra-modern cousin—hopes to better her own financial status by being nice to the Tysons.

Nan harasses the loss of her father's fortune which prevents her from financing the divorce of her latest crush, "Sugar" Sarrail.

Nan takes Vernon to have her hair bunnaed and a complete beauty treatment. Vernon emerges a vision of loveliness.

Returning to her hotel, The Splendide, Vernon again meets Terry. She introduces Nan, who gives Terry her best come-hitherish look, but his gaze is all for Vernon. Nan began to think that she had erred in having this girl from Texas beautified.

But Nan must have her opportunity with Terry—so she asks him to accompany them to the Van Suydam's party that night. Terry does not accept but that night Vernon receives a corsage of gardenias with no card enclosed. Were they from Terry? She could not understand why Terry, who obviously cared for her, had not jumped at the opportunity to be her escort.

At the party, Vernon overhears a girl say, "Here comes Terry Shannon! Isn't he marvelous looking?" "I'll say he is," comments another, "but he's engaged!"

Vernon is stunned but later, dancing with Terry, she all but forgets what she heard. So many gallants were trying to cut in on Terry, he leads Vernon off to a staircase leading to the roof.

CHAPTER XI

With Terry's hand under Vernon's elbow and both very close together they climbed the little winding staircase.

"If it's cold up there, I'll get a wrap for you," he suggested.

But it wasn't necessary to get a wrap. The steps led to a glass-enclosed sun-parlor dimly lit by one swinging Chinese lantern.

Two wicker armchairs, with chintz cushions and foot-rests, were set in this small porch, side by side.

"Thank the Lord no one else has discovered this!" remarked Terry as Vernon gathered her long taffeta skirt about her and sank into her divan

"I'm thirsty. There was champagne at the bar. I'd love some. Could you get it?" she asked of him recklessly.

Vernon Must Know

She must learn to do as the others did. Acquire poise. Let him see she wasn't just a country bumpkin.

The champagne would give her confidence. Here was her opportunity. Alone with a wonderful man like Terry, she wanted to outdo the other girls, have her wits working in quick tempo.

"Please!" Don't let anybody take that chair. I'll be back in a couple of shakes."

The moment his finely-shaped back had vanished, she took out her pocket mirror, and applied a fluff of powder to her cheeks, forehead and nose. Never had she looked prettier. She was assured of it. Her heart sang a little song of happiness.

Terry returned with two large glasses of champagne. She accepted one of them. He seated himself close beside her, holding the other. "Here's to a pretty girl."

Suddenly she thought of the unknown "Alma." Her heart sank as she asked: "Which one?"

"You, of course. Fishing?"

She sipped slowly. How best to broach the subject? It was rather delicate.

Just the hint would suffice, where we were getting along so nicely.

She smiled. She could have sung with joy, now she knew he was free

MISS NATALIE FOLSOM of Hamilton models a frock and jacket outfit of ginger brown sheer wool, trimmed with bands of kolinsky. It is the extremely useful type of ensemble known as the "costume suit," to be worn at important daytime events. A rule of the military is seen in the collar, the widened shoulder with a capelike drop of fur. The jacket is sleeveless and very short and svelte, tying at the waistline. A tiny pillbox with a cuff brim and a bow at the back matches the suit. For shopping information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her.

Uncommon Disease of Blood

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

"Purpura Hemorrhagica" is the big name given to a condition in which spots of blood appear in parts of the skin or mucous membrane.

It is a rare disease and its nature used to be more or less of a mystery.

Our knowledge of it has greatly increased and we may hope that eventually this ailment will be forgotten. Until that time it is important that the disease be recognized early.

It may be a symptom of some internal disorder. Sometimes it comes on suddenly in an individual who otherwise is in good health At first there may be noticed a readiness to bleed upon the slightest scratch or injury. Hemorrhages take place beneath the skin, producing many black and blue marks all over the body. These purplish areas may remain for several weeks or months.

The bleeding may occur in the mucous membranes or lining of the nose and mouth. Indeed, there may be a severe hemorrhage from the region. At times the bleeding may be in the lining of the stomach or intestinal canal. In such cases the sufferer complains of cruelty pains and diarrhea. The stools are black because of the unabsorbed blood.

Sufferers from this disorder should undergo complete examination and microscopic study of the blood. The cells of the blood should be counted. The doctor must determine whether the bleeding is due to a deficiency of the clotting elements of the blood or because of a disturbance in the bone marrow where some of the cells are born.

DON'T CONFUSE IT

Do not confuse purpura hemorrhagica with "hemophilia." Hemophiliacs or "bleeders" are persons who bleed profusely from the slightest cut or bruise The latter disease is an hereditary one, transmitted through the maternal side of the family.

In these cases it is exceedingly difficult to control the hemorrhage and consequently a case of hemophilia may terminate fatally. The hemorrhage in purpura may be severe, but as a rule can be controlled by pressure or by the use of a special serum

Sufferers from purpura and other forms of bleeding often are benefited by blood transfusions. In some instances "splenectomy" is advised; this is the name of an operation in which the spleen is removed. Unfortunately, this does not always bring about beneficial results. The operation is performed as a last resort.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

Mrs. F. D. Q.—What would cause a clicking sound in the jaws on both sides? I have had this annoyance for ten years and it seems to be more annoying and louder as time goes on. I have been advised to see a specialist. What would you advise?

A.—Since this condition has persisted over such a long period it would be well to have an examination and expert advice.

Glamorous Beauty Film

Gives Velvet Smoothness To Legs And Arms

By ARLENE GOULD

TO WHAT beauty party do you belong?

If you are a woman of the world—a modern sophisticate—you doubtless take keen interest in every new style and beauty whim, finding in each a certain pleasant thrill.

If, on the other hand, you are a die-hard conservative, believing in the old order, frowning at the new, you'll frown at all the delightful bits of madness that cosmeticians think up in the fall of every year.

Neither do you have to go to extremes these days to keep in step with the times. Take, for instance, the new "liquid stockings" which are the very latest thing in evening glamour.

"Liquid stockings" come in a tube, and in case you haven't already guessed it, is a smooth, velvety paste. It is spread lightly over the legs (or arms and shoulders), giving the skin a delectable finish. It is the perfect preparation for stockinglless days and nights and affords a magic screen for blemishes of all kinds

Nowhere is appearance so essential as on the stage. Players must look better than their best —because looks are part of their stock in trade. If you have seen the dancing chorus of "The Great Waltz," you've doubtless marvelled at the exquisite loveliness of every member of the company.

Well, this velvety film is being used by the entire cast to achieve that envied alabaster look to arms, legs and shoulders. A thin film applied to the skin does wonders in producing an effect of luminous loveliness. When applied to the legs, it is spread on at the toes and worked upward.

To learn the name of this "liquid stocking" cream which comes in a tube, call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Question—I have three deep lines running across my forehead, caused from continually raising my eye brows. These lines make me look old and although I massage them and put creams on every night, they still appear.

Helen L., Dorchester.

Answer—You are fully fifteen years too young to be bothered by forehead wrinkles. You must first of all adopt a calm appearance and avoid frowning. These lines are caused by continual frowning—not from any loss of natural oils in your skin. However, it is good to keep your skin well lubricated if there is any sign of dryness. Massage and facial exercises will undoubtedly help you a lot. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my facial exercises leaflet and also for my facial massage routine

Question—It has caused dry, falling hair? I had a nervous breakdown last year, and ever since my hair seems to be lifeless. It lacks luster and it is impossible to do anything with it. I shampoo it once a week. Do you think this is too often? I will appreciate any suggestions.

Helen L., Dorchester.

Answer—Nervousness, worry and ill health certainly take a heavy toll from the glorious crown. There is no doubt about it that hair, like every other part of the body, is dependent upon hygiene and health. First of all, you must keep your hair scrupulously clean. Make your weekly shampoo serve as a scalp treatment as well, by frictioning the scalp vigorously. Loosen the dead skin scales by using a lubricant the night before the shampoo. Mineral oil is good for the purpose. Brush the hair often, and don't be afraid of applying your finger waves.

Martha Lee's Chat

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

At a luncheon the other day, the topic of discussion, as it is apt to be where ladies are gathered, was about the high price of meats.

A suggestion for roast for this weeks Sunday dinner, why not a Stuffed Pork Shoulder, or Stuffed Spareribs, the recipe for which is given below

There is a slight drop in both the native and western fresh turkey prices, which makes this attractive in many large-sized families—the western selling for 25c a pound, the native as high as 45c.

In serving meals attractively, do not forget the little fruit garnishes. They play a most important part in adding appeal to the platter. At this time of year we naturally think of apples, and they can be served in many ways—apple sauce, spiced apples, apple fritters

Bananas also combine with pork or beef and these can be baked in a sugar syrup or, as a friend of ours did out of necessity, in a ginger syrup. A most delicious combination

The use of grapes in a little more novel and we suggest them for use with fish.

ROAST STUFFED SPARERIBS

1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
¼ cup diced salt pork
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped parsley
3 tart apples, diced
¼ cup sugar

Select well-fleshed rib sections that match. Have the breastbone cracked so that it will be easy to carve between the ribs. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Prepare the stuffing as follows: Fry the salt pork until crisp and remove the pieces from the skillet. Cook the celery, onion, and parsley in the fat for a few minutes and remove. Put the apples into the skillet sprinkle with the sugar, cover, and cook until tender, then remove the lid and continue to cook until the juice evaporates and the pieces of apple are candied

Mix with the apples the bread crumbs, crisp salt pork, cooked vegetables, salt and pepper. Lay one section of the ribs out flat sprinkle with salt and pepper and spread with the hot stuffing. Cover with the other section and sew the two together. Sprinkle the outside with salt and pepper and rub with flour. Lay the stuffed ribs on a rack in an open roasting pan and sear in a hot oven (480 deg F) for 20 minutes, or until the meat is lightly browned. Reduce the oven temperature rapidly to very moderate heat (300 deg. to 325 deg.) and continue to cook for about an hour longer, or until the meat is tender.

Mrs. Beeckman on Good Manners

Assisting at the Wedding

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

My cousin is to be married at two o'clock on a Saturday afternoon. She has asked me to wait on table afterwards

She says that it will not be an elaborate affair—just a few friends and relatives. This is all that I know about it. Will you kindly give me some rules to follow in regard to this? M.

Without knowing the wedding menu, I can't give any definite rules for the service expected of you.

But in general the thing for you to do is to see that every one is taken care of, the courses are served so that not only the main dishes are served but that everyone is served the accompanying food accessories that the beverages, coffee, tea or whatever, are served and repeated if wished

Aside from warning so often when relatives or friends are invited to assist at the serving, they are prompted to chat too long with guests, whom they know very well, and forget their jobs of general serving.

So remember that, for the time of the service of foods, you are a waitress, perhaps a glorified one, but still with a definite job to be done. Leave your visiting for after the feast

PROCEDURE FOR HOME WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to be married at home, in the living room, and I wonder if you would be kind enough to give me any suggestions for decorations, how to arrange the rooms and how the wedding party should come in?

Any suggestions will be greatly appreciated.

BRIDE-TO-BE.

For your house wedding, chose the most effective place in the living room for the ceremony place before a mantel or a fireplace, or in a bow window, or between two windows.

Have this place banked with greens or with greenery and flowers or with flowers alone

On the ends of this improvised background it is effective to have two tall items of decoration, tall floor candlesticks containing cathedral candles, or simple tall stands with trailing ivy or smilax, or very tall vases of beautiful white flowers

Remove any heavy pieces of furniture to the sides of the room, but it is well to leave several chairs in position so that any older guests may sit, if they wish.

The wedding march may be played by a small orchestra or by a violin and piano, or by a piano alone, or the wedding march may be sung.

As the guests arrive, the bride's mother, the hostess of the occasion, stands at the door of the room in which the ceremony is to be performed, and receives the guests. The bride and her attendant and the groom and his attendant do not appear before they enter for the ceremony. This is true even in the most informal of weddings.

Then the groom enters with his best man, and they take their places at the right of the ceremony-place. The best man stands a step or two behind the groom, and on his left facing the entrance.

Next comes your maid of honor, walking alone. And last come you and your father, walking together, you on your father's right.

When you and your father reach the ceremony-place, the groom steps forward to meet you, you stand on his left, and your father steps back a step or two to the left, where he waits until the place in the ceremony in which he gives you in marriage. Your maid of honor stands on your left, to help you with your flowers, during the ring part of the ceremony.

The best man stands at the right of the groom to produce the ring at the proper time.

After the ceremony, the groom kisses the bride, the clergyman offers his "best wishes" to the bride and his "congratulations" to the groom.

Then you and your husband turn to receive the greetings of your relatives and friends. In a house wedding there is no signal.

NATURE being what it is, all women are not born "free and equal." Many readers of this newspaper know that—and sorrow! A woman's days are not all alike. There are difficult days when some women suffer too severely to conceal it.

There didn't used to be anything to do about it. It is estimated that fully eight million had to suffer month after month. Today, a million have accepted the relief offered by Midol.

Are you a martyr to regular pain? Must you favor yourself, and save yourself, certain days of every month? Midol might have you riding horseback. And even if it didn't make you completely comfortable you would receive a degree of relief well worth while!

As a rule, it's a knowing woman who has that little aluminum case tucked in her purse. One who knows what to wear, where to go, how to take care of herself, how to get the most out of life. The eighth woman, who uses Midol! Of course, a smart woman will not try every pill or tablet somebody says is good for periodic pain. But Midol is recommended by specialists. It can form no habit, because it is not a narcotic. Taken in time, it often avoids the pain altogether. But Midol is effective even when the pain has caught you unaware and has reached its height. It's effective for hours, so two tablets should see you through your worst day.

You'll find Midol in any drug store. Or, a card addressed to Midol, 170 Varick St., New York, brings a trial box postpaid, plainly wrapped.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Love Too Intense Can Bring Misery

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IS INTENSE LOVE never reasonable?

Does it never go hand in hand with common sense?

Can it never, at will, be turned low or fanned high to suit the peace of mind of the beloved?

Must many of us always suffer because we have too little—or, yes, actually—too much of the most precious thing in the world?

Familiar enough is the misery of the unloved or the little-loved. But it is quite as true that the over-loved—the objects of a selfish, possessive, jealous love—have quite as big a problem.

"Worried Bride" who has been married a year, far from wondering, as many girls do, how she can keep her husband's devotion, writes to ask me how she can meet what is really impossible demands that his love makes of her.

"We ought to be happy," she says, "and indeed we are, much of the time. Each of us adores the other more than anything else in the world. We have many tastes in common and we simply live for each other. We have a darling little home, and I love all my domestic duties. Doesn't that sound ideal?

JEALOUSY

"The trouble is that my husband loves me in a violent way that I don't understand. I am supposed to be good-looking, and he is frightfully jealous if another man even looks at me. Little as I can do to help it. This hurts my feelings and we have scenes.

"Then he wants us to live entirely by ourselves instead of mixing with the pleasant crowd of young people who want us to join them. If I suggest going to a party, he suspects me of some scheme. He doesn't even want me to see my own parents.

"But that's not the worst. Mr husband, a salesman, has a new job which will take him away from home several days of each week. He is never going to believe that I haven't been untrue during his absence. How can I make him trust me? He couldn't possibly have a more innocent and faithful wife." "AGNES"

I have the profoundest sympathy for this poor girl, a victim of the most unfortunate type of love.

Since passionately jealous lovers seem usually unable to overcome by strength of will their particular variety of madness—since they can't, or don't, make good resolutions, and wake up next morning cool-blooded and common-sensible like the rest of the world—nothing much gained by arguments, entreaties, promises or, indeed, by tears.

A SOLUTION

And the best medicine, I should say, for this trouble, where the constant strain of jealousy and suspicion puts an unfair burden on a suffering wife, would be a baby. Indeed, a succession of babies.

The sight of his wife devoting herself to their child will be, I think, the most calming experience possible for this unreasonably jealous husband. His interest in the baby itself will also help to make his love for his wife a more natural and peaceful thing.

And speaking of unreasonable jealousy, did you read in the papers of the case of Mr. and Mrs. Serge Minkiev of 201 Liberty avenue, Jersey City? His wife Anastasia, got angry and left home because she thought he devoted too much time and attention to a turtle which he bought in a pet store and brought home as a pet for their children.

Can you beat that?

MADE THIS LADY'S HUSBAND "RESTLESS"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband and I have a business of our own. I've always been a good wife to him and have done more than my share in making things prosperous. We have one son.

Recently it became necessary to extend our business, and I hired a married woman to buy my own age, who has three children. She began to tell my husband he was still young and should get more fun out of life. She made him so restless that I discharged her and when she left she threatened me with, "I'll see to it that you won't keep your husband."

He has never left our business before during its season, but now he has gone away twice, and has been with this woman. I have told him if he wants to leave me he may do so. But he says not until I order him. I can't bring myself to do that, as I love him dearly. SHARLENE

Perhaps you may have been too diligent in your devotion to this joint business. Why not go away with your husband and suggest having a little fun for two? And I'm sure you did not mean it when you suggested he could leave you if he cared to. That would certainly be leaving him for the wolves to devour.

This woman seems to be the usual mischief-maker, and I do not believe her influence is sufficiently forceful to win your husband from his home, family and business. Have patience and keep your sense of humor.

BABY HAS A TOOTH!

Oh, what is happening? Why are the telephone wires humming like a mad hive of bees? Why are two Grandmothers chattering and bragging about "smart children?" And say they "knew he'd start early?"

Why is an Auntie fairly squeaking, and saying, "I'll be right over."

Why is an Uncle grinning, and saying, "Gosh, the little cracker-jack!"

And is that Bob, the young father at his office, hanging onto the telephone as if it were a dearly-beloved, shining of eyes, saying, "I can't get away early, worst luck, but kiss Sugar-pie for me. And yourself, too, Proud Young Mother?" And why is he so excited? Why is the god-father so amiable for hours after Bobs has rung him up?

Has somebody fallen heir to a fortune from a rich Uncle in Australia?

No, it is something much more important than that Bob's and Bobs' BABY has a TOOTH!

MADGE NEAR COLLAPSE ON TRIP

CHAPTER 470

Our trip homeward from Smithtown was as uneventful as the journey to the village had been packed with adventure.

We saw nothing of the troopers or their prisoners

As we passed the spot where but a few minutes before we had been living shields against the bodies of the gangsters I wondered vaguely if the high speed had not affected my brain and peopled this deserted road with fantasy.

That Lillian shared my eerie feeling I knew when I heard her give vent to a low laugh and say in high-pitched tones calculated to reach my ears above the noise of the speeding motor.

"I believe we were dreaming, Madge. There won't be gangsters, there won't be cops."

"That's what I've been thinking," I told her a bit treminously, for I was still shaken by my experience, and though I did not turn my head I was conscious of her sudden, searching gaze upon me.

TELL DICKY AND HARRY

"Shall I drive?" she asked. "Allah! He knows I can't hit your speed, but I'll do my best."

She knew exactly how to spur me. I tried myself as my will set itself to steady my nerves. The implication that I was too unnerved to drive with safety, and that she, the most indifferent driver in our household, ought to take my place, was like a red cloth in the hands of a matador with a baited bull at the receiving end.

"No, I'm perfectly all right," I told her, and then, after a second, I tried to modify the curtness of the reminder with a suggestion which I tried to make casual.

"I suppose we'll have to tell Dicky and Harry about this," I said.

"And gosh! How I dread it!" was her instant laughing rejoinder. "Of course, we'll have to tell 'em, but let me give you a pointer, dearie; let's do it in our own sweet time. Just now, everything is too strained and stressful to add even so light a straw as this to the camel's back. Will you be a good child, and wait until I give you the word before broadcasting this adventure?"

"Of course," I answered earnestly and then added naively and we turned in at the gate of the farm house.

"There's our car in the driveway. It's chief and Harry must be back!" Lillian said as we drew up to the veranda steps.

"GOOD GIRLS"

Her husband made good the prophecy by opening the door and dashing down the steps. He patiently had been waiting for us.

"Have you got it?" he asked, and without a word Lillian held the precious package of serum out to him. He grasped it and turning, ran up the steps again, and into the house. As he disappeared there came floating back to us an emphatic exclamation. "Good girl."

"Things must be pretty strenuous with Lee Chow," Lillian commented thoughtfully looking after him. Then, as she turned her gaze back to me she took me by the arm.

"What's the matter?" she demanded, and answered her own question next second.

"But of course. That terrific pace!" she said. "You must be dead. [illegible]

PRISONER OF THE OGPU

By GEORGE KITCHIN

CHAPTER 22

After a short stay at the Transfer Station they were marched to their points of destination where their trials really began.

The State Trust "Severoles" had not made a careful calculation of its resources and had blundered into thee contract with theb lind optimism so common to Soviet institutions

It had not expected such a speedy delivery of the man-power contracted for

It could not supply warm clothing to the prisoners because of the general lack of warm clothing in the country.

It could not organize the transport because of the unwillingness of peasants to place their horses at its disposal, and it could not bake enough bread for similar reasons.

In spite of this disorganization the camp administration continued to pour prisoners into the forests, and when we arrived at Kotlas the situation had assumed catastrophic proportions

There were 6000 prisoners and 700 horses in the forests. They were scattered over the tremendous territory of the Ufiug forest district, which consisted of eight bases sub-divided into many outposts of 200 to 250 men each.

The whole net of the Ufiug timber-works was managed by Orlov, a typical shiftless OGPU official

At the outposts there was a shortage of housing, axes, saws, clothing and footwear. The insufficient supplies of food which had been brought to the outposts by the 700 horses sent there, were all coming to an end. Horses died from lack of fodder.

Hay Requisitioned

All available hay was requisitioned from the peasants of the adjoining districts. The District Soviet passed an urgent resolution mobilizing for work all the peasants within its territory.

Our office was instructed to pay the teamster-peasants a bonus of a certain amount of food supplies for each drive.y

Moscow was sending us axes and saws by express. The Communist director of "Severoles" who had signed the contract was discharged, his technical assistant, a bourgeois expert, was arrested on the charge of sabotage, the whole contract was somewhat altered

For an additional remuneration the camp administration undertook to fulfill the former obligations of "Severoles" which the latter had not been able to accomplish.

This was a typical instance of Soviet planning. The usual practice in the U. S. S. R. in such cases is that the two parties declare that the contract cannot be fulfilled for reasons beyond their control and therefore is cancelled

Plan Interrupted

They put a stop to the work started and the whole new undertaking dies a natural death.

At the beginning of each such new enterprise the newspapers are full of descriptions of the "imposing new example of Socialist construction."

But when the work is discontinued the papers do not mention a word about it, so that the reading public remains under the impression that it is prospering, while actually it no longer exists.

In this case things were different, because the OGPU itself had undertaken to aid Socialist construction by supplying certain needs in the execution of the Five-Year Plan.

Relinquishing of the contract meant loss of prestige, acknowledgment of faulty calculations and of insurmountable obstacles, the existence of which the OGPU had never been willing to acknowledge.

It finally meant an interruption of work in the Five-Year Plan program, throwing a monkey-wrench into the machine of Socialist construction Outrageous and quite impossible!

Besides, the prisons throughout the land had already been emptied and the prisoners were already at their destinations.

They would have to be brought back to the prisons and the OGPU would have to give up the profitable agreement under which it was paid for supplying the man power necessary for the execution of the timber export provisions of the Five-Year Plan.

Therefore it was decided to continue the work in spite of all obstacles. Comrade Boksha, the chief commander of the Northern Penal Camps Administration, was expected any day to arrive from Leningrad, the seat of the head-office.

Special deputies were making the rounds of the surrounding villages to check up on the fulfillment by the peasants of their newly-imposed teamster duties and to arrest slackers.

The forest outposts were furnished small quantities of the goods most urgently required. The timber-works bases were advised that they would be required to fulfill their full assignments.

Their remonstrating to orders were countered by assuaging promises.

The prisoners' lot in the forests was becoming unbearable, escapes were more frequent, mortality grew and typhus epidemics broke out at all the outposts.

At this critical moment Boksha arrived in Kotlas. He was the man on whom all Moscow hopes were centered, but of course he was quite powerless in this instance.

During his visit I had my first opportunity to observe the working methods of one of the highest OGPU penal-camp officials.

Chief of the Administration Boksha was a Lett and a locksmith by trade. He was about 45, tall and haggard. He had established his reputation in the cheka by his brutality in the suppression of uprisings during the civil war.

He arrived at 8 o'clock in the morning, accompanied by the penal camps chief of sanitation, Dr. Movsh, who was a former prisoner and had elected to remain in the camps' employ after the [illegible] of his term.

Boksha went in [illegible] way, leaving a trail [illegible] our office. He [illegible] and shouted a [illegible] questions and [illegible] tions into the [illegible]

Our head chief [illegible] tension at h[illegible] staff by the [illegible] threats to h[illegible]

Bukhaltzev, [illegible] pace and [illegible] assured him t[illegible] would calm d[illegible] boss did not [illegible]

Later on when [illegible] lunch five of them [illegible] six liters of alcohol [illegible] the next day Boksha spent drin[illegible]

Bukhaltzev's private [illegible] At night he slept in the private [illegible] on the floor, rolled up [illegible] fur coat.

In another day he left [illegible] went to Archangel, where [illegible] tions were as alarming [illegible]

During his short stay [illegible] he issued instructions [illegible] ours trying to escape [illegible] to work were to be shot.

Horses Fed First

He also pointed out the necessity of preserving the lives of the horses and ordered that [illegible] enough oats [illegible] fed bread at the expense of [illegible] owners.

"Better let ten prisoners die than one horse!" read his order.

Comrade Boksha's system of work astounded even [illegible] guilty. But during the [illegible] years I frequently had an opportunity to see men, who considered themselves the cream of Soviet officialdom, at work.

My observations convinced me that Boksha's behavior was not in the least singular, but was common practice, from which there were but few exceptions.

Such were undoubtedly the work-habits of the high officials with whom I came in [illegible]

Written in the Stars!

Is the Day of Our Death Decided in Advance?

By the FLOYD GIBBONS' Adventure Club

Publication of your story may be delayed a bit while Floyd is in the war zone, because of the time it takes his mail to reach him. Floyd asks all his adventurers to "be patient with a hard workin' feller."

HELLO, EVERYBODY!

Anthony Cultrera, 37 Highlawn avenue, Bronklyn, N. Y., comes to us today with a story that is a strong argument for fatalism. Fatalists, you know, believe that nothing we can do can put off the hour of our death. They say that important date is written indelibly in the stars and what is to be—is to be. Following that line of argument a man can go through unbelievable adventures and escape unscathed from any deadly peril—simply because it is not his day to die.

FLOYD GIBBONS

I don't believe in it myself but Tony's triple escape from death in a burning building almost converted me.

Tony is a painter and back in 1917 he was employed to paint the old Hilly Hotel at Long Beach, L. I. The Hilly House was a dried-out wooden fire trap that snapped up paint like a thirsty puppy laps up milk. Tony and another painter slept at the hotel while they were on the job.

On the night of April 16 the two painters woke from a sound sleep to find the room filled with smoke. They jumped out of bed and opened their door and instantly both recoiled in horror. A blast of smoke and flame shot into the bedroom with a fury that swept them off their feet.

Knowing how dry the old building was the men wasted no time but dashed recklessly into the burning hall for the stairway. The flames licked their legs and burned them severely, but they kept on. At the stairway they got another shock. The wooden staircase was an inferno of flames. There was no escape that way and the flames behind them now prevented them from returning the way they had come.

Panic stricken, the men groped their way through the dense smoke to a rear stairway and succeeded in reaching the kitchen. By this time the entire hotel was on fire—the kitchen door itself burning before their eyes.

Tony stood on a table and kicked at the window. He felt a sharp pain in his leg and his companion withdrew a large sliver of glass from the gaping wound. He remembers hearing a sullen roar from overhead—as though the roof had fallen in—a deafening crash and then oblivion.

Tony woke up and looked around him. He was stretched on the ground outside the building. Dazed, he tried to collect his thoughts. Apparently an explosion had blown him right through the kitchen window. He was complimenting himself on his good luck when he became aware of the intense heat. Perhaps he was still in danger. As he sat up a blast of heat hit him with paralyzing force in the face and he saw with eyes of horror that he lay only twenty feet or so from the blazing building! Unless he got out of there he would be cooked alive!

He started up—his eye on the already swaying wall of fire that towered over him. What if that wall should fall and bury him? He got to his feet. It was too late! The wall was already falling!

Tony stood transfixed with horror and watched it fall. He was right in the path of blazing tons of solid wall. There was not a chance of escape. Even if he could run it would be too late now.

Tony says that as he stood there waiting for death it seemed to take ages to come. He remembers marveling at the way the entire wall seemed to stay together in one immense piece—only the flame encircled window casements—just holes in the structure—showing the sky beyond.

Closer it fell—the terrific heat singing off his eyebrows as he watched. Not until the fire scorched his eyes did he close them and when he did he thought it would be the last time they would ever see the light of day. He mumbled a prayer and faced his death standing.

And then the miracle happened—or may be it just wasn't Tony's time. The wall crashed all around him with the roar of a volcano. Dust, smoke and flame smote him from all sides. Cinders and sparks bombarded his tortured body. But one thing stood out in his mind and rang like a bell in his consciousness. HE WAS STILL STANDING!

A hose played on him. The cool water cleared his head and eased his seared flesh. Firemen arrived and found him standing there like a statue. They carried him away and in the hospital he heard with amazement the whole story.

The wall had really fallen on him but by some queer freak of fortune his body had hit AN OPEN WINDOW CASEMENT!

Wow! That's close enough to make a man wonder, isn't it?

But that's all for today, boys and girls. See you Monday with a new yarn. It's by LEO BROWN of 383 NORWELL STREET, Dorchester, who tells of reading how he committed suicide!

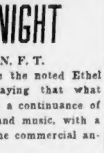
IRENE DUNNE IN RADIO ROLE TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

It would be the noted Ethel Barrymore, saying that what radio needs is a continuance of better plays and music, with a lessening of the commercial announcements.

One of the outstanding features designed in the spirit of that trend, I think, is the weekly "Hollywood Hotel" hour (WNAC), where Louella Parsons presents screen stars between 9 and 10 o'clock each Friday night. It's to be Irene Dunne this evening.

They have arranged for Miss Parsons, the popular Boston Evening American film critic and columnist, to introduce Miss Dunne for a microphone version of the latter's most recent release, "The Magnificent Obsession," in which support is provided by a young man named Robert Taylor. His is the chap who made one of the year's startling leaps from practical obscurity to the threshold of stardom.



"N. F. T."

LONDON'S LIMEHOUSE

The Mills Brothers can get an authentic touch into their singing of "Limehouse Blues" in the "Campus Revue" doings (WEEI) tonight from 10:30 to 11 o'clock, because last summer while playing in London they actually saw and heard the sights and sounds of the famous Limehouse district.

Their unusual technique enables them to achieve vocal-instrumental effects that no other group can approach in tunes like this. Other numbers which the quartet will present are "Moanin'" and "What's the Reason"?

George Faunce Whitcomb, local poet and author, got heard for a few moons, steps back into the Hub broadcasting today at 2 o'clock (WAAB) to tune in some readings of his own writings, while Mischa Tulin, impresario of the Theramin, contributes a musical background.

HOLIDAY HIGHLIGHT

Daniel J. Lyons, A. B., A. M., Grand Knight of Mt. Benedict Council, K. of C., and one of Somerville's civic citizens, is the principal speaker in a special broadcast (WMEX) tonight at 9 o'clock. This program, sponsored by the Somerville Council, marks the first time any K. of C. unit has used the radio as a regular activity. Also to be heard during the half hour which is devoted to a commemoration of Christopher Columbus are J. Ralph MacDonald, baritone, and the Somerville Civic Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mario Carmosino.

'FIXER' GETS REPORT ON POOR STREETS

"THE TROUBLE FIXER"

Public Service Department, Boston Evening American.

This department has been installed as a public service for Boston Evening American readers. It will endeavor to solve problems and fix troubles dealing with city, state or public utility service. Requests must be specific and brief. No anonymous requests, nor matters of a purely private nature can be considered.

The following report is made by Joshua Atwood, division engineer of the highway division, public works department, on the matter of four complaints:

1—Repairs wanted for Ericsson street, Allston, from Lincoln to Adamson street:

2—Repairs wanted on Lincoln street, from Cambridge to Market street, Brighton:

This street is now in process of construction.

3—Street sign wanted at the corner of Lincoln and Ericsson streets:

Sign is now being prepared for installation at this intersection.

4—Repairs wanted on Dillingham street, Dorchester:

This street is a public way up to No. 47. Please advise as to what part of the street repairs are wanted.

Thus, briefly, is the report on four highway complaints made through this department.

Any complaints of a highway nature must be accompanied with a sketch showing location of the street with streets numbers identifying section.

Mrs. R. B., Mt. Vernon street, Quincy:

I doubt if I could do any more than has been done on the matter, from what you say in your letter. If there is no appropriation nothing can be done?

TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Whether Popeye Squadron 127 of Dorchester is entitled to its boast of model making and flying prowess will be determined at the Playstead in Franklin Park tomorrow.

The Popeyes, led by Commander Sidney Wallerstein, "Art" Sampson, Sanford Oringer and Levy Walha, issued a challenge for a contest of gliders and cabin models and about 40 Junior Birdmen have accepted. The Dorchester fliers claimed they were unofficial champions of the Junior Birdmen.

Arthur Sampson

The number of contestants indicate that their boast is highly disputed.

Kits will be given as prizes in tomorrow's meet, which will start at 9 a. m. and end at 1 p. m. Junior Birdmen rules will prevail.

All members are invited to visit the U. S. weather bureau and ground station of the U. S. bureau of air commerce in the administration building of Boston municipal airport next week in conjunction with the observance of "Air Navagation Week."

Afternoons would be most suitable for the visits, according to A. D. Ross, meteorologist in charge of the station.

A special message from Eugene L. Vidal director of the bureau of air commerce, will be printed on the Birdman page of the Boston Sunday Advertiser on Sunday.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1935

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

'Wanted—a Coolidge'

The Sooner the Better

ROBERT MOSES, an outstanding authority on government since his graduation from Yale, and who also speaks his mind without fear or favor, says in the Saturday Evening Post that the Raw Deal is unworkable.

He adds that "hard headed voters will be looking for a prudent man, with no great pretensions, to pay our bills."

"As early as next year," continues Mr. Moses, "the country may be in a mood for another Calvin Coolidge."

Mr. Moses understates the case.

The country is in the mood for another Calvin Coolidge THIS year—for anybody who will stop the mad dance of the billions and clean up the appalling mess of silly socialistic nonsense, bureaucratic bungling, political corruption, broken pledges and sunshiny hokum that chiefly constitute the Raw Deal.

BUT Mr. Moses, if possibly a little late in his prophecy, is nevertheless an excellent analyst.

He says further:

"The spirit of individualism, lulled to sleep for a brief time by false logic and honeyed words, is as strong in the land today as it was when there were still geographical frontiers to conquer, and before the pride of millions had been sapped by the dole and by class subventions.

"I believe more firmly than ever in the Supreme Court with its present powers, and I see no need of a Constitutional amendment, assuming human ingenuity can invent one, to legalize VAGUE AND EXTRAVAGANT ASPIRATIONS."

And of perhaps the most stupid of all Raw Deal policies:

"One set of executives is busy creating scarcity and high prices, while another is aiming at abundance and cheapness. No one attempts to reconcile the two points of view and policies, and government funds running into huge figures are supplied with equal recklessness to both sets of people."

AND of Mr. Farley's spoils system, which the Administration has permitted to flourish unchecked:

"The alphabetical agencies have done more to wreck the competitive principle than have all its avowed enemies since Grover Cleveland established it half a century ago."

Grievous words, these, falling harshly on the ears of the heaven-on-earthers and the custodians of the pork-barrel alike.

Mr. Moses will get himself disliked in Washington by thus impartially castigating Frankfurterism and Farleyism.

But to most of us mere Americans, this language is not unwelcome.

We may be "too damn dumb to appreciate the finer things of life," as one Raw Dealer has elegantly described us, but we can sometimes appreciate the truth.

Biennial Sessions

Legislative Economy

The recent hearing at the State House on the question of holding biennial legislative sessions again brought to public attention a needed reform.

Many representatives of taxpayers' associations favored the change from yearly sessions as a sound measure of economy.

President Eliot Wadsworth of the Boston Chamber of Commerce declared it was likely biennial sessions would SAVE $700,000 ANNUALLY IN THE STATE'S BUDGET.

Forty-two other states conduct their affairs with legislative sessions once in two years.

The initiative petition of more than thirty thousand voters favoring biennials deserves better reception than it has yet been accorded on Beacon Hill.

Economy in government MUST be achieved.

Widen Cape Cod Canal

Needed Improvement

The Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, meeting in Boston, heard favorably the arguments advanced for a wider Cape Cod Canal.

Col. John J. Kingman of the Boston district Army Engineers told the gathering a wider and deeper canal would render this vital waterway "less vulnerable to attack."

Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber, declared ultimate widening to 540 feet was assured.

This would make the Cape Cod Canal the widest in the world.

The main point now appears to be the time to be consumed in effecting the needed changes.

Senators and Congressmen should be asked to do their bit to speed up the work.

Preparedness

Boston Demands It

When Mayor Mansfield appointed an advisory committee to study Boston's actual needs regarding snow-fighting material, the Boston Evening American urged that the report be carefully studied.

The report, recently forthcoming, calls for immediate expenditure of $673,660 for tractors, trucks, plows, etc.

It MAY not be necessary to spend all that money.

Perhaps arrangements for emergency use of much of the apparatus could be made with private trucking firms.

But it is indisputably necessary for Boston to be prepared to remove the snows certain to fall in the coming months.

We want no more blockaded streets like those seen last Winter.

It's a Good Cause

The Salvation Army's budget for Boston this year is $307,900.

The current campaign for funds deserves speedy success.

And nearly everyone knows the Army requires charitable support to carry on.

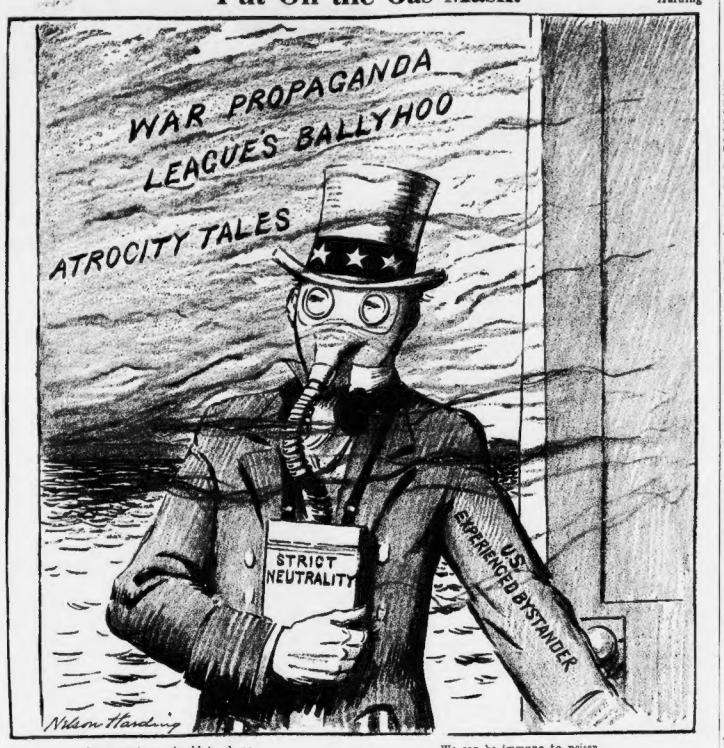
Put On the Gas Mask!

By Nelson Harding



One experience should teach us
How we can escape the subtle
Poison gases loosed upon us
In a time of foreign warfare.

We can be immune to poison
Fumes if we will wear the gas mask.
"Safety First" should be our motto
When the Old World goes haywire.

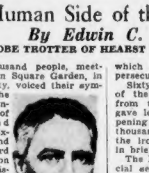
Great Modern Tragedy

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Twenty thousand people, meeting in Madison Square Garden, in New York City, voiced their sympathy for the evicted and enslaved Jews of Germany, and contributed sixty-five thousand dollars toward the alleviation of their miseries.



Edwin C. Hill

The red threat of war has driven from the public mind consideration of the unhappy plight of the German Jews.

The onrush of the Italian legions over the Ethiopian frontier; the massing of British naval power at Gibraltar and the Suez Canal; the unshakable defiance of Mussolini; the incredible threat of a second World War — together they withdrew public consciousness from one of the great tragedies of modern times.

The great meeting in Madison Square Garden served to recall attention to the fact that, if anything, the condition of the Jew in Germany has gone from bad to worse.

SEEDS OF TROUBLE

Not since the brutal edict of Louis XIV drove out of France the finest and most useful elements of her population, the Huguenots, has such incredible ferocity been directed toward a creed or a people.

The seeds of this trouble were sown in the greedy, stupid Peace of Versailles. A bitterly humiliated Germany—burning with resentment, kicked into the gutter of civilization, bent on revenge—was only too eager to turn an ear to the vainglorious promises of a little Austrian top sergeant.

The passion for revenge has not been based upon military defeat, but upon political humiliation. A Germany fairly dealt with could scarcely have evolved the frame of mind which produces the persecution of both Jews and Roman Catholics.

The treatment of the Jews is not difficult to explain. It is based upon envy, jealousy—the meanest of all human emotions. Love is as strong as death—jealousy as cruel as the grave.

THOUSANDS EXILED

Jealousy of the Jew—his eminence in universities, in the fields of chemistry and medicine. In the world of music, in the lofty heights of literature and in the theatre—was the match which touched off the fuse of persecution.

Sixty-five thousand members of the race have been driven from the land to which they gave loyalty. What now is happening to the five hundred thousand still remaining under the iron heel of Nazism? Here, in brief, is the story up to date:

The Reichstag, meeting in special session in Nuremberg, has just proclaimed a series of laws directed to these ends: The isolation of Jews, with deprivation of legal and social rights condemning them to a caste status as low as that of the untouchables of India.

These new laws provide that no Jew may receive a charter of citizenship. They provide that marriage of Jews and German citizens is forbidden. They provide that Jews may not employ German feminine domestic help under 45 years of age.

They provide that Jews may not show the national flag, but, when permitted, may show the Jewish colors of blue and white.

The German state thus officially segregates into ghettos 500,000 Jews, and probably about 750,000 Christians who have Jewish blood. It is a long-range program with one end in view. That end is to make it utterly impossible for a Jew to earn a living in Germany.

Alarmed by a world-wide storm of protest which followed innumerable acts of brutality committed upon Jews, the Nazi leaders have now forbidden Jew-baiting and attacks by individuals and mobs, but the mitigation of physical brutality is to be supplanted by an even crueler humiliation.

The Jew is to be taken from the rack and the pillory where his wrongs and sufferings are exposed to the world and whereby he gains world-wide sympathy. Instead, he is to be put in solitary confinement, a pariah, an outcast, an untouchable.

He will be starved out socially, politically and economically. However, it will be a silent treatment, a refined cruelty, which does not lend itself to startling headlines.

The scheme is to lull world opinion to sleep so that Germany's deadly injured prestige can be re-established abroad.

One may squarely ask: What is civilization going to do about this? So far as I know, the feeble, futile League of Nations, which has been very quick, under the spurring of England and France, to shake a fist at Mussolini, has not uttered one word of honest protest to the German government for treatment of the Jewish people.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Oct. 11—Thoughts while strolling: Nicholas Murray Butler could walk on in my play as a capitalist without a make-up. Slick Red propaganda in those travel books about Russia. How the crowds pivot when Bill Tilden goes by! Mark Sullivan's milk-white hair.

O. O. McIntyre

John Horgan has turned in a grand performance managing the Edison hotel. Mayor La Guardia's gadget-festooned car. Cable from Hannen Swaffer: O. O. McIntyre is a newspaperman in Lochgelly, Fifeshire, Scotland.

No one packs so much excitement in his voice as Clem McCarthy describing a thrilling race.

Look alikes: Sinclair Lewis and John Buchan, English author. For a different sort of evening: A round of Chinatown with Anna May Wong. Or a swing of the bars with Charles MacArthur and Gene Fowler. Not many can write about things in aspic. Tokay and full bark malaccas like Lucius Beebe.

Memory: the old-fashioned night shirt with starched bosom and collar in a Galeries Lafayette window. Youngest looking actor for his years: Bert Lytell. The crowds that clutter around Ethel Waters' spiffy limousine at the Winter Garden. She's the biggest Negro carrier since Bert Williams.

Hendrik Van Loon's face would be grand for a pipe ad. Spunky lady: Cobina Wright. Constant dinner companions: Joseph P. Kennedy and Herbert Swope. Time for some soul to open one of those restaurants demanding full dress.

I cannot pass that barn-like restaurant, "The Flying Trapeze," incidentally, without dawdling before the window for a few packs. Last evening an intrepid serialist was swinging, in the Dainty Marie manner, over the diners, hanging by her chin, then her toes and blowing kisses.

It has become the midnight haunt of sports writers and was the favorite midnight snack place of Floyd Gibbons before he sailed for the wars.

Tearing up the street car tracks along Madison avenue has given an appearance of s width to that thoroughfare and also ballooned it as a shopping center. It is flicked with rude la Paix stretches in dazzling decors of chromium and mirror.

There is Chez This and Maison That, single-named botiques such as Minerva, Jeanne and a pair of male milliners calling themselves Hilaire and Hector. Madison avenue's perpetual touch of austerity is the ponderous and stuffily overbuilt Whitelaw Reid mansion with gloomy courtyard suggesting decaying grandeur.

At night only a caretaker's light seems to burn and there are briefries that make one think of owls and bats. And hurry the step.

The famous old Reuben from midnight-to-dawn stand on Madison avenue has been re-decorated for another restaurant experiment, the original tenant having swiped around the corner in a fresh whoop of delicatessen splendor.

The wheel chair sims seeker also has taken up his stand at the left of the entrance along with the grinning blackamoor starter and his "Reuben's—that's all!"

Indeed about the only familiar missing at the new Reuben's is George Jessel and his whackin', black cheroot.

Tucked in a niche off West street's roaring water front is the alliterative appeal of "Bunn Bill Bolivar's," a haven for seamen who crave a delicacy seldom available at sea. Writers of sea tales often drop in for local color. Conrad visited it.

"Biscuit Bill" is reminiful of the euphony B. L. T. enjoyed from comparative oblivion: "Bunn the Baker of Barnboo." Bunn was a real figure in the life of Ringling Brothers' famous home town in Wisconsin.

Artistic temperament note: Leon Gordon, the painter, looked out a bedroom window of his Connecticut home recently on one of those mornings when the world seemed dour. In his dolor he decided a nearby hill despoiled the vista.

He grumbled and brooded all day. So much so next morning a fleet of steam shovels arrived. And the hill was chug, chug, chugged to oblivion.

Not even Casper Milquetost is mors of a push-over for slogans than I. But those hospitals for pinched shoes that herald "Limp in, Leap out" are wavering my faith.

Every time I pass one I hang around to see a limper or leaper. So far: Nary one, nary way!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

THE NERVOUS HOUSEWIFE'

No person in this modern world is on a worse spot than the Housewife—a statement you've probably heard plenty frequent if you happen to be her husband, stranger. Yet even at that, it's true.

Elsie Robinson

Here's a job as old as the human race. Naturally the race in general, and husbands in particular, arrived at a fixed attitude toward that job long since—decided that woman should be such-'n'-such and wives should act so-'n'-so.

A decision with which the ladies agreed. As much as any lady can agree with anything, anywhere, anyhow.

Then suddenly—in a handful of years—everything changed.

THE MACHINE AGE

The Machine Age arrived. Away went all the old domestic handicrafts upon which the Home had been based and from which the Wife had drawn her power—baking, preserving, sewing laundry work. The Home—once an industrial center—shrank to a hole in the wall. The Wife—once an important creator —became what?

At the same time along came Suffrage and woman's advent into the male industrial world. A step which speedily proved to be a doubtful blessing.

For a while it gave the dispossessed wife a new job and a new standing; it also brought down the wrath of all the males upon her presumptuous head.

Moreover it complicated an already badly tangled program. For husbands, having had a taste of feminine usefulness in the office, now expected their wives to be as efficient in the home.

Which was certainly tough on poor little Mary Anne, who'd never expected to burden her brain with anything heavier than a sponge cake recipe or a crochet pattern!

ALL OVER WORLD

So just where, if anywhere, was a modern wife to go—and what, if anything, was a modern wife to do?

All over the world women began asking that question, with every degree of irritation, humiliation, self-pity, rebellion, despair and tantrums in general.

Men, hearing the clamor, snorted indignantly. What was the matter with the dod-gasted critters? Their mothers had been satisfied with their lots!

Why couldn't they be? The reason was obvious— and every mmn knew it. But no man would admit it. For what could he do about it if he did?

In the meantime, women fumed at home, flooded the divorce courts, fussed in the office, developed 5783 new varieties of hysteria and neurosis and raised Cain generally. If only somebody would tell them what was the matter with them and what to do about it.

MODERN MARRIAGE

So somebody did. In one of the finest books of the century—"The Nervous Housewife," by Abraham Myerson, M. D., Little, Brown & Co., Publishers.

It isn't a new book. It has been reviewed before by this department and many others. But I still know of no better friend to every harried household.

It doesn't, of course, solve the economic riddle—tell what we're to have in place of the Old Fashioned Home—or even try to.

It doesn't attempt to decide for any woman whether she'll be happier in an office than a kitchen. But it does do that most important of all things for her—HELP HER TO FIND AND KNOW HERSELF.

Here's modern marriage—As is. Neither the rose-covered idyll nor the grimly sacrificial rites of our grandmothers' day. Nor the emancipated partnership the Feminists would have us believe we have achieved.

But the most neglected and puzzling institution on earth. Marriage—in all its beauty and brutality—its rich opportunity and heart-breaking futility—its wastefulness, unreasonableness—yet sacred urgency.

And here's the modern housewife—bewildered—robbed of her ancient plan and power—burdened with endless new demands and obligations for which she has had no training—trapped in the mad muddle of it all.

Where does she go from here? Dr. Myerson doesn't say. But he does tell her how she may keep herself human and hopeful while she's waiting for the millennium to begin. And that's somepin'!

Words of Wise

It is strange what a man may do and a woman may think him an angel.—Thackeray.

Whenever people agree with me, I always feel I must be wrong.—Alexander Pope.

It costs more to revenge injuries than to bear them.—Bishop Thomas Wilson.

When prosperity is at its height, everyone ought to consider within themselves in what way they shall endure disaster.—Terence.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

Why are men continually scolding or scoffing at the modern woman because of the atrocities she commits against nature and her weird ideas about makeup?

Helen Rowland

It is not the women but the MEN, who keep the beauty parlors going on all cylinders by their demand that all women shall be beautiful.

In the days when a woman could munch chocolates and grow comfortably fat, wear her corsets until the whalebones broke and sit opposite her husband at breakfast with her hair done up in curlers, you never heard of any wife having her face peeled or her lips cut off by a surgeon.

When beauty was a luxury and a Heaven-sent gift, instead of a necessity, a married woman had a cinch. A man took his last look at ALL women and closed his eyes when he slipped the wedding-ring on her finger.

But how different today, when every woman feels that she must work like a stoker in order to satisfy the masculine demand for feminine pulchritude!

The high cost of beauty keeps half the men in this country with their noses to the grindstone. Every other woman you meet is a work of art and of the beauty specialists.

To improve on nature by changing your personal color scheme, from your hair to your toenails, is one of the oldest human instincts in the world. Even the savages painted themselves until they resembled a beach umbrella or a fancy awning.

But it was not until the coming of the beauty crusade and the cult of slenderness, the lipstick and platinum hair, that civilized woman began to regard nature as a double-crosser and beauty as a positive necessity.

In these days, to be born beautiful saves a woman not only a lot of heart-aches, but a lot of money. The average working girl will spend her week's salary and go without lunches for a month, just for a hair tint that will last only a few weeks and the latest shape in eyebrows.

And it is nothing for a business woman to spend five or six hundred dollars for a face-lift, every year or so. It's part of the overhead.

If all the tears and moans of the women who are starving themselves down to a bone, having their faces jacked up and spending their days under hot dryers or permanent waving machines, could be put together, they would make Niagara Falls seem like a gentle garden spray.

And why do they do it? Because they love to suffer? Ah, no! They do it because it is less painful under the hands of a beauty specialist than to suffer as the "forgotten woman!"

Farley Blocks Reform

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

WHEN Congress adjourned, there was pending a bill to overthrow the spoils system throughout the Federal service.

This was the Logan bill, sponsored by Senator Logan, of Kentucky. It provided for the extension of the protective requirements of the Civil Service Act to all Federal positions except those exempt from its operation, with three two exceptions:

(1) Federal positions subject to Senatorial confirmation.

(2) Federal positions exempted by executive order issuable only by the President.

As long as Mr. Farley is permitted to run the national politics of his party from the office of the Postmaster-General of the United States it is safe to say that neither the Logan bill nor any other measure designed to loosen the grip of the spoils monger of politics upon the throat of Federal Administration will be passed.

According to the National Civil Service Reform League, only one bill—the Guffey-Snyder Bituminous Coal Regulation Bill—requires that all the positions it creates shall be in the classified service; that is, they must be filled as the Civil Service Act prescribes.

This lone victory over the spoilsmen is chiefly due to the protest against the spoils system made on the floor of the Senate by Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts.

Unfortunately for the public welfare these protests were not vitated through Mr. Farley more appointments to the Federal service, in complete disregard of the merit system, than has been done under any administration since the Civil Service was started more than 50 years ago.

This has been done in spite of the frequent protests of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who, early in the administration, demanded the removal of Mr. Farley either from the office of Postmaster-General or from the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee.

Senator Norris has repeatedly cried out against the sordid rule of the spoilsmen, not only upon the ground that the spoils system breeds bad administration but also upon the ground that in the long run it is the worst of bad politics.
